DEATHS.

Mary McLaughlin, aged 30 years, died Tuesday, at her home, 23 Charles street.

Ada A., aged 5 years, child of Charles E. and Eva B. Thompson, died yesterday at their home, on Jenness street.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cahill will be pained to hear of the death of their six-year-old son, George Henry Cahill, from inflammation of the bowels, after an illness of only three days. The little fellow passed away at 10 o'clock last night, and a ray of sunshine has gone out forever. Their affliction is very sad indeed, and it seems as if they were called upon to bear more than their share of life's burdens as Mr. Cahill is confined to his bed from rheumatism. The funeral will be announced later.

LAWTON'S

Record Impugned by the Boston Herald.

THE LOWELL CITIZEN AGAIN SEVERELY CASTIGATED.

Candidate Lawton's Advocacy of Corporations Interests Exposed.

It is about time for the city committee to begin to instruct voters upon marking their ballots. The large number of blanks cast at the state election should induce voters to be very cautious in crossing, first, the proper number of candidates, and secondly, in putting the crosses in the proper place.

Mayor Pickman received 6097 votes, Mr. Courtney 6065, a difference of 32 votes only. On the mayoralty vote there were 550 blanks, viz: ballots which were not properly marked or which were not marked at all.

Some voters think they will make matters sure by writing their names upon the ballots, while others try to be as accommodating as possible by giving each candidate a vote. It is not an uncommon occurence for voters to promise to vote for opposing candidates, and it may be in an honest endeavor to keep their word that they put two many crosses on their ballots. This must be avoided, for a ballot so marked is always thrown out and the good intentions of the voter go for naught. The safe and proper way to vote is to mark one cross opposite the name of each democratic candidate. Such a ballot will help elect John E. Russell, James B. Carroll, Peter J. Brady, William A Reade and all the other democratic nominees.

Every democrat and every republican who wants to hear the issues of the campaign fairly discussed, who wants to hear republican fallacies exposed and republican charges against the democracy refuted should go to the big rally in Huntington hall tonight. There will Governor Russell and Congressman McKettrick expound democratic principles and show the true causes of the financial stringency and the business depression.

The Citizen has for some time been muttering its disapproval of the anti-stock watering bills which were rejected by the Massachusetts senate before its adjournment last summer probably with the intention of explaining away or justifying Mr. Lawton's opposition to those same measures. After stating that the Citizen's words are as strong as if written by a corporation attorney, the Herald referring to this question says.

"The bills in question that our contemporary and Senator Lawton condemn were in accordance with the petitions of the state board of trade of Massachusetts and the associated board of trade of Boston. They were drawn up and submitted to some of the ablest legal authorities in the commonwealth, men who had had long and varied experience with railroad law, by the side of whom no disinterested authority that our Lowell contemporary can name could hold a candle. Men experienced in railroad administration so far as this related to state supervision had been carefully over them and had corrected the defects that might exist in them. Furthermore, it may be added that the only opposition to them before the committees, and so far as could be seen in the legislature itself, were the counsel of the interested corporations.

But we are told that the republican platform condemned these measures, instead of approving of them, as wrong in principle, impossible in practice and unworthy of the subject. It would be interesting to know if this is the republican candidate's view of the question. This is, no doubt, Senator Lawton's view, and he, as we have said, assisted in drafting the platform, and perhaps drew this particular plank."

This clinches the last nail in Lawton's political coffin. He is beyond question the most out and out advocate of corporation interests in this part of the state. When he shall have been defeated by Mr. Brady, Mr. Lawton will have no trouble in securing a position as corporation counsel.

The Boston Herald has this to say of the joint debate between Williams and Walker: "Mr. George F. Williams again vindicated his reputation as a keen and eloquent debater in his encounter with Mr. Walker at Worcester. There seems to have been little difference of opinion in the vast audience, composed of both republicans and democrats, as to the merits of the joint debate. The facts as well as the logic were all on the side of the young man from Dedham. Besides, he kept his temper, which is where he surpassed Mr. Walker again.

Tonight Governor Russell will commence speaking in Huntington hall at 7.45 o'clock in order to get to Lawrence in time to address a rally there. The hall will be densely crowded with men anxious to hear his views on the leading campaign issues.

Marcellus Fletcher will soon have the sample ballots on hand and will distribute them among those who may desire to have them. Every voter should know how to mark a ballot.

Already there is a kick among the anti-saloon league over that circular issued by Rev. Hugh Montgomery in favor of the republican ticket. Here is the objection of a prominent member: This league was organized as a non-partisan church institution. Here is one of its fundamental principles, as given in the constitution:

"Reserving the right to entertain individually our political preferences, we hold ourselves free from the denomination of theliquor power in our exercise of the elect ive franchise."

A circular issued by the league at the time of its organization says: " * * *

It is proposed to unite in this way in opposition to the saloon all voters of the commonwealth of whatever political party who can be reached through the instrumentality of the churches."

It is only just to say that the men whose names are published above this appeal are not responsible for this prostitution of the organization to the support of a platform and candidates which "ring hollow" on the temperance question. They were not consulted about the publication of their names.

NEW YORK DRUMMER

WHO PULLED A REVOLVER AND KNIFE YESTERDAY.

Tells Judge Hadley That He is a Very Nice Boy, and Chief Howard That He Knows Nothing About What He Don't Know.

Albion Dyke, the man who was arrested on Central street yesterday afternoon while sporting a revolver and knife, and who was supposed to be a crank was arraigned in court today on a charge of assault and battery on John O'Gorman. He pleaded not guilty.

John O'Gorman took the stand and testified that he was standing near the corner of Central and Middlesex streets, engaged in conversation with a friend, when Dyke, whom he had never seen before, approached him and drawing a knife said: "I'll rip you up with this." Then he drew a revolver and said: "I can blow you up with this." Witness became frightened and started off.

Officer Walsh testified to seeing the two men talking but did not know what was the matter. He was standing on the opposite side of the street when a man came across and told him what had happened. He went after Dyke, and when he arrested him he found a revolver, a box of cartridges and a knife in his pocket.

When Judge Hadley inquired of Dyke if he had any question he desired to ask the officer, he replied: "All I have to say is that he is a gentleman."

Dyke then said he bought the pistol for a friend. He told the court he was a drummer, and travelling men generally carry such things for protection.

In answer to a question by the chief he said: "I don't know any more about anything this man says than you know anything about something you don't know anything about."

Again he said to the chief: "The world-wide knows me, and I am a pretty nice boy." The court found Dyke guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $6 for assault and battery and $3 for drunkenness. Dyke paid with the remark that "he never spent so much money foolishly."

GEORGE OTIS

Imposes Upon the Credulity of a Girl.

BOTH ARE NOW MISSING FROM SPRINGFIELD.

He Was Married But Yet Deceived the Girl.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 2.—George H. Otis, a grocer at 445 Central street, has been missing since Monday night, and Miss Lena Kock, a handsome 18-year-old girl, who resided with her parents at 102 Wilcox street, has been missing since the same night, and her family, the police and Otis family are of the opinion that the couple have eloped, and are now either in New York or Boston.

A warrant has been issued for Otis' arrest on the charge of abduction. Otis has a wife and two children, and is about 30 years of age. According to Mrs. Kock and the sister of the missing girl, Otis has been paying attention to Lena for a year. He has called at the house two or three times a week, and gave his name as G. O. Young, and claimed to be a single man. He had not, as far as they know, proposed to the girl, but it was tacitly understood that they were the same as engaged.

Otis had presented Lena with many presents, and accompanied her to public places of entertainment. Last Monday Otis called at Miss Kock's and stayed a short time. After he had gone Lena said she was going out for a few moments, and left home. She did not return, and, inquiry being made at Mr. Otis' store, it was found that no such person as G. O. Young was there, and that Otis had not been there since the previous day.

Since Monday night Mrs. Kock, who is alone, her husband being away, and unconscious of the scandal, has gone from house to house almost frantic in her search for her daughter. Yesterday she gave the matter to the police.

A short time since there was a fire in Otis' store, and it is supposed that the insurance money and the proceeds of a fire sale have furnished the funds for his trip.

CASH BALANCE OF $2,500,000.

World's Fair Stockholders Lost Nothing by Their Investment.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The official figures of paid admissions to the fair up to the closing day are 21,469,441. Adding the number admitted on passes the total is 27,739,041. It is considered that these figures beat the record made at Paris. The total receipts of the Paris exposition were $8,300,000. The returns are not all yet in for the World's Columbian exposition, but they will not fall short of $14,000,000.

All obligations have been met and there is a cash balance on hand of $2,500,000. The gate receipts and the salvage from now on, it is expected, will pay the current expenses until the end, so that the stockholders, who have holdings representing $5,000,000, upon which they scarcely expected to realize anything, were paid 50 cents on $1.

Most of them, however, will contribute their stock to the Columbian museum. It is expected that $500,000 worth of this stock will be so donated, and with the gift of the museum by Marshall Field, the $100,000 by George M. Pullman and between $500,000 and $1,000,000 that is expected from others, will give the museum a working capital of over $3,000,000.

NATURALIZATION.

JUDGE HADLEY OPPOSED TO HOLDING NIGHT SESSIONS.

He Gives Advice to the Managers of Political Parties—They Are Not to Wait Till Election Day Nor to Bring in Ineligible Parties.

The following opinion from Judge Hadley upon the manner and means of naturalizing foreign born residents in the police court, is given by the Mail and being of special importance because of the judge expressing his intention to demand more careful preparation of candidates, is well worth perusal:

"I should like to have it publicly announced," said he, "that we have held the last evening session for naturalization in the Lowell police court. With the duty which now devolves upon the officers of the court it is too much to ask us, after the arduous duty of the day is over, to come to the court room and sit for two hours or more in an atmosphere vitiated by a crowd that is none too tidy at the best, and decide hurriedly upon papers that should receive deliberate consideration. It requires the closest attention to see that everything is properly prepared, but if we should take the time necessary to do strict justice in every case there would be at the delay. I propose hereafter to hold special sessions for naturalization on Saturday afternoons, but of course we shall be prepared to attend to all such cases during the regular sessions of the court.

"I am aware that this plan may not be favorably received by the engineers of either political party, about election time when they go through the city with a drag net and gather in a drove of candidates to be put through before election day comes. But I wish to have it distinctly understood that the court does not sit for this purpose, simply to gain voters; our purpose is to make citizens. That is what they are naturalized for, and not simply to issue the final papers on time to allow the newly-pledged citizens to go before the board of registrars on the last day of their session.

"If this were the only time that the candidates could legally present themselves there would be some excuse for it. There may be some instances where such is the case, but they are very few.

"What I mean is this: The law requires that every person who desires to become a citizen shall first file an application, stating when he arrived in the country, which shall be sworn to by two witnesses. The law also requires that he shall have been in the country five years before he takes out his final papers, but he cannot take them out until two years from the time he makes the application. If a person makes an application upon first arriving in this country he must wait five years before the final papers are taken out, but if he resides here three years and then makes the application he can take out the final papers when the two years have expired. He is not required to do so, by law, immediately upon the expiration of the two years he may do it any time afterwards. That time may have expired six months ago, but the candidate takes no interest in the matter in most cases, until just before election, when they are "brad-awled" by the party leaders and come in droves at a night session.

"As I have said before our object in naturalization is to make citizens and not voters particularly.

We Don't Run the Police Court

in the interest of any party and we don't propose to have any politics in our administration of affairs if we kuow it. If foreigners desire to become citizens they should be interested enough to call for their final papers earlier in the season and not wait to be whipped in by those who take no interest in them except to qualify them as voters in time for election. It is not in keeping with the dignity of any court of justice to be a party to any such political engineering and I propose to stop it.

"I don't wish to be understood as being peculiar in this respect. We have discussed this subject at meetings of the municipal justices and we are all agreed the duty imposed upon us is abused and it is time for a reform.

Another radical change that I propose to make and insist upon, is that all applications for papers shall be made to the clerk of the court and that he shall make them out. The present plan is to have the papers made out at the headquarters of the different political parties. Mistakes are frequently found upon them which require considerable time to rectify, which would not be necessary if proper care were observed in drawing them up. It oftentimes happens that we have to send out for the person that made out the papers to explain matters which, of course, takes time. Again, when papers are drawn up by parties politically interested it is sometimes evident that the candidate has been coached as to the answers he is to make, and he forgets his instructions and gets cornered. There was a case last week when a candidate appeared for his final papers and the first question I asked him was how long he had been in the state. He answered that he came from Connecticut last June. I dismissed him at once as the law requires that he must be in the state a year. He demurred and wanted to know where he should go to be naturalized. I told him that I didn't see as he could be naturalized any where under the circumstances, unless he he could find a court that had jurisdiction, but that I did not have any. Now, whoever was instrumental in sending that man into the court must have known that he was not eligible, and it is barely possible that that he had forgotten to answer the questions he had received.

"Again I believe there are many persons naturalized who would be disqualified if their characters were known. If a man has he is not eligible, and the city clerk is required to post a list of applicants in order that their antecedents may be looked up but how many cases were ever investigated.

"The fact is that the whole matter has been too loosely conducted and it will continue to be so as as long as the business is engineered by political parties. In the eagerness to make voters there is too much of an inducement to use fraud and deception. If a person has no conscience in the matter and has no regard for his oath there is no reason he cannot become a voter before he has been in this country a week. I don't propose to allow any case of illegal naturalization to pass this court if I know it, and if any safeguards can be legally applied I propose to apply them if possible."

Gay and Festive Masher.

HAVERHILL, Nov. 2. The attractiveness of the young women of Haverhill proved too much for Frank Bedell of Lawrence. For a few hours last night he amused himself by attempting to scrape acquaintance with some of Haverhill's fair daughters, but one of the young women complained of his advances, and patrolman Smith sent him down to the station, where his tall hat, light coat and cane now hang on a nail. Bedell was tried today.

REPEAL BILL

Promptly Passed in the National House.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS NONPLUSSED BY SPEAKER CRISP'S TACT.

The Bill Has Been Signed by President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Silver purchases by the government closed last evening. The purpose for which Mr. Cleveland called congress in extraordinary session was accomplished at 4:35 yesterday afternoon, when he affixed his signature to the bill to repeal unconditionally the purchase clause of the Sherman law. The struggle in the house was short. Only 27 men could be rallied for the last stand by the silver leaders, Messrs. Bland and Bryan.

Mr. Bland and his colleagues, knowing that further opposition was futile, preferred to sacrifice the opportunity for a few hours' debate offered by Mr. Wilson in order to force the majority to bring in the cloture and concur in the senate amendment by duress. But even in this they failed.

Their small following might have succeeded had they been led by experienced and skillful parliamentary tacticians. Neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Snodgrass, his lieutenant, is well versed in parliamentary procedure, and when thrown off their guard by a momentary distraction, they exposed their flank by failing to follow one filibustering motion with another.

Speaker Crisp overwhelmed them by putting the pending motion to order the previous question. It was carried with a roar. The filibusterers had been caught napping, and nothing remained for them to do except to submit. For 30 minutes, under the rule, followed the rattle of oratory amid the greatest confusion and excitement. At its conclusion the vote was taken on Mr. Bland's free coinage substitute. The majority was 73 against it.

Then came the final vote on concurring in the senate amendments. The vote stood 193 for concurrence and 94 against. When the original bill passed the house Aug. 28 the vote was 201 to 100, so that although the total vote yesterday was smaller the proportion was practically the same.

The Climax.

The final vote was taken at 2:50 p. m. The bill was engrossed immediately, and in 20 minutes, at 3:10, the formal announcement was made to the senate that its amendment had been agreed to by the house. The bill was hurriedly enrolled by Chairman Pearson of the committee on enrolled bills, and at 3:30 was presented to Speaker Crisp for his signature.

A fleet-footed messenger carried it to the senate, where it was signed two minutes later by Vice President Stevenson. Chairman Pierson, with the bill under his arm, entered a carriage waiting for him on the plaza in front of the Capitol and drove rapidly to the White House.

The president had been kept duly advised of the progress of events. Indeed, he manifested so much interest in the vote in the house that at his request a duplicate of the names of those who had voted for or against the concurrence was made soon after the rollcall was completed, and this list was lying on his desk when Mr. Pearson arrived with the bill. Secretary Carlisle, Attorney General Olney and Private Secretary Thurber were present.

After felicitating with each other for a few moments over the victory that had been achieved, the president took up the engrossed copy of the bill and read it aloud. Then picking up a quill pen he affixed his autograph at 4.27. And thus 85 days 4 hours and 25 minutes after the extraordinary session convened the remedy for the financial distress, which Mr. Cleveland demanded in his message, was applied.

The analysis of the vote shows that 124 Democrats, 68 Republicans and one Populist, Cannon of California, voted for concurrence, and 70 Democrats, 15 Republicans and nine Populists against the motion. The following members voted for the Bland free coinage substitute and also for concurrence:

Alderson, Black of Georgia, Brookshire, Donovan, Edmunds of Virginia, Geary, Holman, Richardson, Mitchell, Marshall, Turpin, Post and Tyler, while Neill, Weaver and Kyle, who voted for the free coinage substitute, did not vote on the final vote.

EPIDEMIC OF GLANDERS

Causing Alarm Among Owners of Horses at Concord, N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 2.—Glanders in a bad form have appeared among horses here. The first case developed in the stables of the state asylum for insane, on Monday last, and the disease quickly spread, infecting several animals that occupied neighboring stalls.

A veterinary was summoned, who, in turn, called State Cattle Commissioner Bachelder. The latter inoculated the horses with malein, the late European discovery, and established the fact that five of the seven sick animals had glanders of a bad type. These he ordered killed, and the stables, which were thoroughly disinfected, will not again be used.

Another case appeared yesterday in a grocer's horse, which has been drinking daily at a public fountain on one of the principal street corners. This horse was also killed, but it is feared that the infection may have been communicated to many valuable horses through the drinking fountain.

A LIFE OF CRIME

Ended In a Summary Manner by a Mob of Virginians.

RICHMOND, Nov. 2.—Notorious Abe Redmond, one of the most desperate men in Virginia, came to his death in Charlotte county at the hands of a mob. He was arrested day before yesterday by an officer and a dozen assistants. A few days ago he was looking for a negro whom he wanted to kill. He got the wrong one, but did not let him go until he had beaten him nearly to death.

About 11 o'clock at night two of his guards were asleep. The door was broken in with a crash, and guards and prisoners were covered with pistols. Without a word the prisoner was taken out. The body was found hanging from a tree. Redmond's life was full of crime.

She Will Marry Yung Kwai.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass, Nov. 2.—A sensation has been caused here by the marriage engagement of Miss May Burnham, daughter of Mrs. Florence I. W. Burnham, to Yung Kwai, a young member of the Chinese legation in New York. Yung Kwai attended the high school here for several years, and then went to Yale university, of which he is a graduate.

Ingalls' Opinion.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 2.—Ex-Senator Ingalls lectured here last night to several thousand people. In an interview he said the poor times is not the outcome of the silver discussion. The need of money is the cause. The people want both gold and silver and plenty of it. He did not think Cleveland would allow any radical changes in the tariff.

Philadelphia Will Miss Him

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Daniel Dawson died in this city of hemorrhage of the stomach. Mr. Dawson was one of the best known citizens of Philadelphia and an all-round athlete. He was also famous as a poet, a gourmet and a society man. As a boxer he had few equals in amateur ranks. He was 35 years old and unmarried.

Roasted Alive.

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 2.—Mrs. John F. Brown went to the house of A. E. Rogers for a pail of water and returning found her 3-year-old girl out in the yard face down, its clothing all burned off. The child only lived 15 minutes. It is supposed the child's clothing caught fire from the stove in the house and that she ran out doors in an attempt to extinguish the flames.

Highwaymen In Maine.

CAMDEN, Me., Nov. 2.—A. B. Ward of Gilbertsville, Mass., and E. E. Hosmer of Camden were held up by two men in the woods between Camden and Rockport and ordered to give up their money or lives. It was so dark they could not see the men, and while waiting an electric car light came around a bend in the road, when the would-be robbers fled.

Phinney's Trial Begun.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—Edward J. Phinney, who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Edward M. Shine, Aug. 19, was put on trial yesterday in the superior criminal court. The defendant pleaded not guilty.

Embezzler Weeks Brought Back.

PORT EADS, La., Nov. 2.—The steamer Foxhall, from Port Lima, Costa Rica, has arrived. Among her passenger was Francis H. Weeks, the New York embezzler, accompanied by two New York detectives.

For Governor:

For Lieut.-Governor:

JAMES B. CARROLL.

For Senator:

PETER J. BRADY.

THE WORLD'S Fair closed like a funeral service, but it was nevertheless an unparalled success.

THE APPLICANTS for relief at the pauper department are numerous and many of them are undeserving. The same may be said of many who apply for employment at the office of the superintendent of streets.

LYNN is agitating against the distribution of hand bills on the streets. That is right, pass and ordinance against it, as did Lowell. It is a common nuisance to have a fakir stick circulars often of the nastiest character into the hands, pockets and clothing of passers by. No decent city would tolerate such an abuse.

IT WOULD have been well for Mr. Lawton, the senatorial candidate, if he had paid the Citizen for keeping silent. He may be called upon to settle for what it had to say of him although it brought upon his head the wrath of the Boston Herald. His labor record is notable as being uniformly opposed to labor measures.

MR. GREENDALGE'S criticism of Gov. Russell for appointing the sucessor to David Hall Rice, is far fetched. He says the constitution says the governor "may" appoint, not "shall" appoint. The "may" leaves it entirely optional with the governor, and if he has chosen to fill a temporary vacancy in the executive council he has a perfect right to do so.

WILLIAM A. READE of Lowell should receive a majority of 2500 votes in this city. It is for the best interests of this city to elect him in order to displace Commissioner Read and break the county ring which sells out the interests of the county to corporations, to private individuals, to their personal friends and political supporters. Mr. Reade would make an incorruptible official and one who could neither be bribed nor bought.

THE REV. Hugh Montgomery has issued a circular giving his alleged reasons as to why he votes with the republican party in preference to any other. He says he favors the republican party because it has without flinching and without compromise pledged hostility to the liquor traffic. It is but a short time since prohibitionists were assailing the republican party for adopting a hypocritical policy on this question and for claiming to oppose the saloon while at the same time openly supporting it. But Mr. Montgomery is not a prohibitionist now. We know not whether he is a teetotaler, but he says he is with the republican party. So much the worse for the party. Such a disturber will alienate five votes for every one he will bring to the party. He is now a member of the party that keeps the prohibitionists from getting a place on the state ticket.

THE JOINT DEBATE

Shirtsleeves Walker was vanquished in the joint debate with Hon. George Fred Williams in Worcester on Tuesday night. Walker's groundless assertions were exposed and the responsibility for the financial stringency and the business depression saddled firmly upon the republican party. Mr. Williams read a letter written by Mr. Cleveland in 1885 predicting the financial stringency if the hoarding of silver and the depletion of gold were not checked. The stringency, the business depression came as predicted and the decision of congress to abandon the purchase of silver is the remedy laid down by Cleveland eight years ago. This fell like a thunderbolt on Mr. Walker and he was utterly confounded, while the crowd cheered for Williams.

REPEAL WILL RESTORE CONFIDENCE

Now that repeal has been passed confidence will return in due time despite the statements of the calamity howlers. It will be their policy to cast doubt upon this statement and to do all that in them lies to neutralize the effect of repeal until after election day.

The manufacturers can keep their mills closed or else running on short time as a matter of party accommodation, and the manipulators of the stock market can off set any improvement that may appear within the coming week. With these precautious the republican stump speakers will tell the people that repeal has brought no change, that the real cause of the business depression is distrust as to the new tariff arrangements.

It is obvious that the effect of any such measure cannot be instantaneous, that some time will be required to bring about a change for the better, and it is still as clear that such a change will follow as a direct result of the repeal bill. The drain of gold from the treasury will be stopped, the piling up of silver is at an end, and confidence in the government credit will soon be fully restored.

The democratic administration has been assailed for not fulfilling its pledges. The repeal bill has been passed as the first and most urgent thing promised. It was said some time ago that the democratic party did not mean to fulfil its pledges, but that statement has been falsified in one instance at least. It is now stated by republicans that repeal will not bring a change for the better in industrial circles. That too will soon be proved false.

An Adjustable Dream.

An Irish earl and his lady were riding out one morning, and meeting one of their tenantry gave her a kindly greeting.

"And sure I had a drame about yer honor last night sending me a pound of tobaccy and yer leddyship a pound of tay, and it's joyful I am to tell ye this morning," said the accustomed beneficiary.

"But, my good woman," replied the earl, "dreams go by the contrary."

"Indade, then, yer honor is to send the tay and her ladyship the tobaccy," was the quick witted reply.—New York Ledger.

A Romantic Bundle.

"Do you love me?" said the paper bag to the sugar.

"I'm just wrapped up in you," replied the sugar.

"You sweet thing!" murmured the paper bag.—Truth.

IT WAS NO USE.

And Realizing It Was Hopeless He Finally Succumbed.

The cable car was going at full speed. It is the manner of this sort of vehicle that it does not gain acceleration gradually after starting, but goes on the jump at the end of the first dozen feet.

At this critical moment a young colored man dashed across the street and swung himself upon the grip car. Just at the same instant a shriek was heard, and a comely woman of African descent and robust physique made a sprint after the traction train. Though the latter was by this time going at about 20 miles an hour, she made a grab at the rail on the last platform and became a passenger by sheer force of muscle and athletic dexterity.

It did not take her half a minute to make her way forward to the grip car and take the seat beside the young colored man, who was much astonished to see her. Said he:

"Whar you gwine?"

"Gwine whar I gwine," she replied loftily and with an air of a soured indifference.

"Whar's dat?"

"Wid you."

"Whuffo?"

"Just 'cause."

"'Cause why?"

"'Cause I feel lik.

"Well, I don't want you follerin me."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar Thompson, I'm gwine to keep my eyes on you."

"I ain't gwine to have it," protested the colored man. "You git right offen dis car, now I tell you."

"Pooh!" responded the young woman contemptuously.

"You hear what I say!"

"Yeppy."

"Ain't you gwine to mind?"

"Not if dis lady knows herself."

"You gotter."

"I won't."

The young man looked disgusted. After spending a minute or two in reflection, an idea struck him, and he said triumphantly:

"You cain't ride, 'cause you ain't got no money."

"You kin pay my fare."

"I won't do it."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar, you'ze a low down man. If I'd knowed you 'fore I married you as I do now, you'd have had to git some other lady fer a wife."

"Stop yer foolishness an git off de car," he replied sullenly.

"I ain't a-gwine to."

"Then you'll git put off."

Just then the conductor came forward to take up the fares in the grip car. The colored man refused to pay for the woman, who addressed an eloquent appeal to the knight of the bell punch.

"This yero is my husband," she said. "I'se got a s'picion dat he's got a meetin on hand wif anudder woman. He got on de car to git rid of me, and I follered to keep an eye on him. I s'pose you're a gemman, and you wouldn't chuck a lady off."

The conductor had a heart, as was evident when he replied:

"Stay on. I'll pay your fare myself."

This happy turn of events caused the young woman to giggle consummately. The man, on the other hand, expressed his disgust with vague and semiarticulate mutterings. All of this had happened while the car was going three blocks.

Just as the cable train was traveling at its most rapid gait between two corners, the recalcitrant husband jumped to his feet without warning and leaped off the car. Evidently he supposed that his wife would not dare to imitate the maneuver, but he reckoned without his host. With a flying bound she sprang off and after him. In 20 seconds she had caught him and grabbed him by the arm.

"Now, you fool nigger," she exclaimed, "just come straight home wid me."

"I'm a-comin," rejoined the man sulkily, evidently recognizing the situation as hopeless from his point of view. And the two walked away arm in arm.—Washington Post.

"I AM NOW A CURED MAN."

The following wonderful statement was sent us by C. B. Carpenter, Druggist, 140 Main St., Spencer, Mass.

DANA SARSAPARILLA CO.:

GENTS:—Some ten years ago I commenced to fail. INDIGESTION and EXTREME CONSTIPATION caused me to lose flesh very fast. I employed Physicians and tried Sarsaparilla, but continued to grow worse. I had a continuous headache, my skin turned yellow, and my friends thought I must die. My strength left me and courage also. This was my condition last February when I commenced to take

DANA'S SARSAPARILLA

Before the first bottle was gone, there was a great improvement. My friends wanted to know what caused such a change in me. I replied "DANA'S SARSAPARILLA." I am now taking my third bottle and consider myself at the age of 50, after Doctors had failed, a CURED MAN.

There are undoubtedly many people who feel at some time or another unwell, not really sick but very indisposed. Now, what such persons need at such times, is not medicine, nor high-priced prescriptions, but what is needed is some gentle, but sure stimulant, something to assist and at the same time enrich the blood; nature will do the rest. And the best medical authorities agree there is nothing better than pure wine.

MATABLES

At Fort Victoria Suffer An Overwhelming Defeat.

KING LOBENGULA MADE A HASTY RETREAT.

Three Thousand of His Men Killed and Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to The Daily News from Fort Victoria says that the Matabeles have been routed, and that the intense anxiety, which has so long existed, is now relieved. All the advancing columns held a share in the skirmishing on the march, which was necessarily slow. On Friday the Matabele impis opened a determined attack on the command of Forbes.

LOBENGULA.

The fight was vigorously sustained, but the Matabeles could make no impression on the white forces, who held a position in the Laager. The Matabeles were mowed down on all sides and finally were compelled to retire with heavy loss. Fresh impis resumed the attack next day, Major Forbes and the combined columns being then within a few miles of Buluwayo. The blacks fought with bravery, as was expected of them, but in face of the machine guns and unerring rifles of the whites they could never get within striking distance.

Flight of the Matabeles.

Finally the attack weakened and the Matabeles showed signs that they were about to retreat. Then Major Forbes gave the order to charge. The Maxim guns were placed upon the dense masses of natives, and the whites instantly afterward rushed upon the wavering warriors. The Imbizo regiment attempted to stand their ground, but over half of them were shot down and the remainder fled back to Buluwayo.

It may be said that this practically was the decisive battle of the campaign. King Lobengula commanded the Matabeles in person. He directed the movements of his head men, and he retreated to Buluwayo after the battle. The white forces decided to make a forward movement at once before the blacks could have time to rally. The combined columns opened the attack upon Buluwayo, but there was little fight left in the Matabeles, and they fled in a northwesterly direction, King Lobengula with them. A flying column was at once made up to pursue and harass them, although it is believed that the Matabeles have been thoroughly beaten and cowed and that Lobengula's power is gone.

The loss to the Chartered company's forces was only slight, and was mainly confined to the column commanded by Major Forbes. The Matabele loss is reported to exceed 30,000 killed and wounded. The imperial forces under Colonel Adams reached Bulawayo yesterday from the occupation by the settlers, hoping the Matabeles could be driven beyond Zambesi before the rainy season sets in, so as to avoid further fighting in the spring.

A dispatch to The Times from Fort Charter says that it is reported that Lobengula has gone to the Mateppo hills with the remainder of his impis. If this be true, he will be completely trapped. It is more likely, however, that he has retreated toward the Zambesi. It is possible that the remainder of the impi may kill Lobengula. Administrator Jameson will remain at Buluwayo as administrator.

Germans Are Worried.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The Cologne Gazette has received a dispatch from Cape Town giving alarming reports of the condition of affairs in German Southwest Africa. It is stated that Chief Witboot and his followers have had a quarrel with the colonial troops near Horkams, and that several Germans, including Lieutenant Francois, have been killed and the German settlements burned. The reports have not been confirmed.

A Fight In the Soudan.

TRIPOLI, Nov. 2.—There has been heavy fighting in the Soudan. Rabak, the ex-slave of Zober Pasha, recently revolted against the Sultan of Wedday, but was defeated. He rallied his forces and made fierce war upon the people of Bornou, and captured several towns about Lake Chad. Rabak has burned and pillaged Boghirmi, the capital, and other towns. The inhabitants have fled to Bornou, to which territory the sultan has dispatched 40,000 soldiers to co-operate with the 25,000 sent by the Sultan of Wedday to attack Lugun, which place Rabak has occupied. The warfare now in progress has caused all the caravan routes to be closed.

Asphyxiated.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—Colonel Gilbert S. Jennings, U. S. A., retired, died last night, aged 76. He was found in his bed in an unconscious condition, the result of inhaling gas. Whether he blew the light out or whether in turning it off he accidentally reopened the stopper is unknown.

The Melilla Engagement.

MADRID, Nov. 2.—There has been no actual fighting at Melilla since Monday. The loss to the Spaniards from the recent engagement was 4 officers and 18 men killed and 15 officers and 70 men wounded.

ARMS FOR BRAZIL.

Belief That Another Very Large Shipment Has Been Made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Antonio de Castilho, consul general in New York for President Peixoto's government, sailed on the steamer Wordsworth yesterday afternoon for Pernambuco. Although De Castilho is in poor health, it is considered significant that he should leave his post these critical times in his country. Men acquainted with Brazilian affairs gave it as their opinion that De Castilho is going to Brazil with regard to the purchase of ships for a navy.

His familiarity with maritime affairs will enable him to tell President Peixoto the exact strength of the vessels which Flint & Co. have purchased and expect to purchase. It is said that a large shipment of arms for the Brazilian army was made yesterday. The story was that the arms were loaded on a sailing vessel, which was to be overtaken by a steamer, and the arms transferred at sea.

The brig Reindeer cleared for San Jose Do Norte, a Brazilian port, ostensibly loaded with 250 tons of coal, and the indications pointed to her as the craft that carried the arms.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—The Brazilian government has purchased through Charles E. Flint & Co. the magnificent steamer Britannia of the North Atlantic Steamship company's fleet. The price paid for her was $225,000.

SYNDICATE OF FORGERS

Will Have to Explain Their Misdeeds to Officers of the Law.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Joseph O. Hayes, 18 years old, a messenger employed by Coffin & Stanton, brokers; Henry D Garrett, alias Loper, 31 years old; James D. Buchanan, 47 years old; "Manufacturer" John T Brush, 52 years old, and Sedlow W Crow, better known as Dr. C W. Selden, 57 years old, were indicted by the grand jury and remanded by Judge Martine to the Tombs.

They are charged with the planning and successful carrying out of a forging scheme on a large scale. Two checks were forged, drawn on the Manhattan company and certified to by that bank, purporting to be signed by Coffin & Stanton. One of the checks was for $3150 and the other for $5966.66. The checks were deposited in the Garfield National bank on Sept. 28 and Oct. 22, respectively, and had been drawn against until only $7.50 remained. Inspector McLaughlin got wind of the swindle 10 days ago.

PENNOYER'S PLEA.

A Whack at the Silver Question In His Thanksgiving Proclamation.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 2.—Governor Pennoyer yesterday issued the following thanksgiving proclamation:

I do hereby appoint the fourth Thursday of the present month as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings he has bestowed upon this commonwealth during the present year. God has indeed been most beneficent to our state and nation. And yet, unjust and ill advised congressional legislation, having made gold alone a full legal tender money, has so dwarfed and paralyzed business that the bounties of Providence are now denied to hundreds of thousands of people within the national domain, who not only are without employment, but also without the means of procuring food, raiment or shelter.

While, therefore, the people of Oregon return thanks to God for his goodness, I do most earnestly recommend that they devoutly implore him to dispose the president and congress of the United States to secure restoration of silver as full legal tender money, in accordance with the policy of the fathers of the republic, whereby our industries may be revived and honest toilers of the land may procure their daily bread, not as alms, but as a reward of their labor.

DOZEN DROWNED.

Electric Street Car Plunges Into a River at Portland, Or.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 2.—An electric car plunged through the open draw of the Madison street bridge yesterday, and sank in the Willamette river. There were 18 or 20 passengers aboard, and all but seven saved their lives by leaping from the car. Five bodies have been recovered.

When the car arrived at the bridge a dense fog enveloped the river and a sharp frost covered the rails with a coating of ice. The draw had just been opened to allow the passage of a steamer, and the usual precautions of closing the gates and displaying the red signal lights had been taken. Owing to the frost, however, the car could not be stopped in the usual distance and crashed through the frail gate and into the river.

The motorman, when he saw he could not stop the car, gave the alarm to the passengers, and as many as had time saved themselves by jumping. The car plunged into the river just in front of the bow of the steamer.

JAMES WHITE'S DEATH.

Circumstances Indicate That Murder Has Been Committed.

WINSTED, Conn., Nov. 2.—Coroner Higgins made discoveries which caused him to order an autopsy on the body of James L. White, who was found dead in his watch box in the yards of the Philadelphia, Reading and New England railroad at Chapinsville Tuesday.

Patrick Finnigan, a section boss, noticed smoke issuing from White's watch box. He investigated and found White dead. The floor was covered with blood, and on the floor were several large stones besmeared with blood.

The dead man's face was frightfully bruised, as was his body. The house was afire, and the flames had also somewhat burned the body. Medical Examiner Butch of Salisbury was summoned, and, after examining the body, refused to allow it to be buried.

Everything points to murder, but there is no clew upon which to work.

White was 33 years of age and leaves a family in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Firemen Overcome by Smoke.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Fire broke out at midnight in a five-story brick tenement at Third street and the Bowery. Twelve families resided there, and they were all immediately ordered out. Six firemen were overcome by the smoke. Two of them were resuscitated, and the other four taken to Bellevue hospital.

Murderous Robbers.

WEEPING WATER, Neb., Nov. 2.—Matthew Ackerman, living near here, was murdered yesterday by two men, who came, it is said, for the purpose of robbery. They shot Mr. Ackerman first and then his son Tom in the head, making a slight wound; then the hired man was shot in the leg and Mrs. Ackerman over the heart.

Delaware Folks Don't Like It.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 2.—The free use of the pardoning power by Governor Reynolds is causing much comment. He has thus far extended clemency to 24 convicts, at which rate he will have pardoned 32 at the expiration of his term. His predecessors have averaged about six pardons each.

Editor Wouldn't Retract.

Murdered by a Rival.

PROCTOR, O., Nov. 2.—John Floyd was shot dead here while sitting with his arm about Miss Lucy White's waist. The young woman received enough shot to disfigure her for life. Harry Smith, a rival for the hand of Miss White, was the assassin. He escaped.

News that is old is not improved by spreading it over a large number of pages, where the reader must hunt to find it. OUR THEATRES.

OPERA HOUSE—The banner night of the season was that of last evening on the occasion of the Salvini engagement. Standing room was even at a premium. Of Salvini and his company in Dumas' wonderful historical romance only words of highest praise can be given. From beginning to end it was an artistic creation complete in every detail and interpreted by clever people. Salvini as Philippi D'Artagnan was instantly the favorite and his assumption of the young Gascon was a character, such as Dumas' has given the world. Lively and energetic as he was in the use of his faithful "Bobby" he showed his inherited histionic talents whenever the part required it. His reception throughout was most hearty and vigorous. It was likewise a treat again to see William Redmond as Athos, and William Harris as Porthos, both of whom were ideal characters in their parts, and upon them the audience bestowed much attention. Miss Moretti as Anne of Austria, superbly presented the part. Miss Dixon was a charming Constance in both appearance and acting. The character which perhaps received an especial share of attention was that of the great cardinal, Richelieu, and Mr. Johnson, in the part, interpreted the lines with remarkable success. It is not an easy part to play by any means.

Of the remainder of the cast Mr. Lane was not the Buckingham which a reader of history would expect to see on the stage; Miss De Forrest as Lady De Winter was clever as Richelieu's spy, and excellent in her emotional acting. The remainder of the cast was undeniably good although the parts being insignificant in comparison, the people taking them did not shine as resplendent as the stars.

Taking the play as a whole it was a delightful and refreshing evening of legitimate drama, and one that proved that the stage is not entirely pre-empted by comedy and burlesque. The costuming and staging was of the best, and the audience proved the warmest in enthusiasm of the season.

On Saturday evening Charles E. Davies will present Uncle Tom's Cabin, with Peter Jackson as Uncle Tom. Between the acts Jackson and the young Californian Choynski will spar.

While it is undeniably strange that such an original, brilliant and witty a creation as Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" should have scarcely half a score of revivals during the whole history of the English speaking stage, it is doubtless due to the fact that not on an average of once in a generation is an actor produced whose natural gifts and accomplishments fit him to adequately portray the subtle, but quaint and rollicking whimsicalities of either of the two Dromios. Next Monday evening, Stuart Robson will be seen as one of the Dromios.

CHILD LABOR.

A BIG DECREASE IN IT REPORTED BY CHIEF WADE.

Violations Have Been Few and Manufacturers Have Generally Obeyed the Law—Reports of District Officers.

The state factory inspectors have reported to Rufus B. Wade, chief of the district police, that there has been a marked decrease in the number of violations of the child labor law the past year.

While last year there were over 3000 violations reported there has been but 253 children under 14 years of age found at work in factories this year.

In his report made to the legislature last year, Chief Wade stated that in 4389 manufacturing and mercantile establishments in the state, 1656 children between the ages of 13 and 14 years of age were employed.

This statement showed plainly that the child labor law, which provides that all children under 14 years of age shall attend school 20 weeks during the year, had been violated. That something should be done to prevent this violation was the conclusion reached by Chief Wade, and he immediately set to work.

From reports recently submitted to him, the chief reports that there have been 3457 inspections made during the year, and only 253 children under the age limit have been found employed.

For some weeks Mrs. Fanny B. Ames, one of the inspectors, has been investigating, and her reports have been quite satisfactory.

In 1880, when the child labor act was in its youth and not as stringent as at the present time, children under 13 years of age were employed by thousands in all the manufacturing centers, and owing to the condition of affairs which existed then the necessity of making the law what it is today was shown.

Since that time the superintendents of large manufacturing concerns have voluntarily refused to employ children under the age limit, and it is partially owing to this fact that the great decrease is due.

Truant officers, formerly very derelict in their duty, are today materially assisting in the work of reform. Their aid in this work is invaluable, as they possess information which it would be extremely difficult for other officials to secure.

Contrary to the general impression, children at work under the age of limit are not in the main employed in large industrial establishments, but in small shops and stores. In Boston very few children under 14 years are employed, though several years ago hundreds of children under that age were to be found at work in stores.

Mrs. Ames says that in all her experience she has never noted so few children employed, and it is her opinion that in time the law will be but seldom violated. The parents, she says, have awakened to the advantages of education, and they endeavor more strongly than in previous years to keep their children in school.

There were 11,855 minors found employed in the different factories, but only 253 were under the age limit.

RABBIT HUNTING.

How it Should be Done to Avoid Law Breaking

On the street the past few days have been seen many men burdened with shot guns and accompanied by dogs. Out in Dracut the reports of firearms are frequently heard indicating that there is considerable hunting, even though the Rod and Gun club is not holding its annual shoot.

Of the New England game there is none that is so persistently and systematically pursued illegally as the rabbit. By its peculiar nature it invites the breaking of a state law that was made to protect it. The use of a ferret is prohibited under the statutes, but there is hardly a rabbit hunter who goes into the woods without a "monkey" or "joker," as the ferret is called. And notwithstanding the degree of persistency with which the rabbit is followed by the hunter, pursued by the nimble beagle and routed from its hole by the ferret, it thrives and multiplies beyond comprehension.

The wild rabbit, like the domesticated animal breeds frequently, and the litters are generally very numerous, some being as large as 15, but an ordinary litter contains about seven. The young rabbits breed at an early stage, and the supply is thereby kept above demand. The rabbits breed in the thick brier patches on top of the ground, under the sheltering shade of the scrub oaks, and in their domiciles in the ground.

The youngsters take to living easily, and in a few days will scamper about in a most lively manner. A dry season, such as has been experienced this year, is conducive to a goodly supply, and this accounts for the great number this year, old hunters claiming that never before have they seen them so plentiful in this vicinity.

The rabbits run in the night, and the woods where they make their stamping ground is traversed with paths leading in all directions. Hopping along from clump to clump picking up the nuts and berries of the woods and nibbling at the fresh vegetable growths, they may be seen on any moonlight night. Into the neighboring gardens they will wander, cropping the dainty tidbits from the garden sauce and selecting the most valuable plants to feed upon.

After feeding they will scamper away for a frolic, and then they will be seen circling about in a merry go round chasing each other and reveling in high glee. By the break of day they have worn themselves out and retire to the cover for rest and sleep, only to be driven out by the dogs, which have sprung them from their resting place by running upon them or had taken the fresh trail and unravelled it until they had reached the end and their reward.

The rabbit is of little value as a food product until after the frosts have covered the land for a few nights. Then the flesh becomes a subject for the epicure. Hunted by day, the rabbit offers fine sport, while those who desire the game for the table and market hunt it by night. The rabbits at this season of the year are found near the wet lands, having their burrows on the hill sides surrounding the sloughs and swamps. Leading to the holes are the many intricate paths, and every hole has an outlet, so that the rabbit may make its entrance by one hole and its exit by the other.

In places where there are boulders shattered so that a hole may be dug beneath them, they will burrow in order to insure them against the attack of the spade and bar when run to earth.

The best time of day to follow them is at early morn. Then they have ceased their night's frolic and the trail that they have left is fresh. With a still morning it is an easy matter for the hounds to unravel the trail and rout the rabbit out, but if there is a wind blowing the task becomes difficult.

COMPLAIN OF CUT-DOWN.

Weavers on the Appleton Report a Decrease in Their Wages.

Justice Assembly, K. of L., met last evening and discussed several important matters.

Several new members were initiated and the recent reduction of 25 per cent. in the wages of the fancy weavers on the Crompton looms was taken up.

A delegation of the weavers was present and claimed that none but skilled weavers can run this work and in their opinion the cut down is injust.

It was stated that before the cut-down the weavers on the Appleton were receiving $1.50 per week less than is paid for the same work in North Adams and Fitchburg; and now when this reduction is made, the wages will be about two thirds of those paid in the above mentioned places. The delegates claim that they were somewhat surprised on reading in an account of a recent meeting of the Church league that Rev. Mr. Wright had stated that the Appleton company had decided to run its mills at a loss, in order to furnish employment to its operatives. It does not look as though they intended to lose much, when they have already begun to reduce wages.

It was voted to bring the matter of the reduction before the notice of the national organization.

A communication was received from the secretary of the National organization, K. of L., asking that a boycott be placed upon all matter published by George Munro of New York city.

After some discussion it was voted to declare a boycott and to bring the matter to the attention of the Central Labor Union at its next meeting.

Miss Delia Conners resigned her position as financial secretary owing to removal from the city and Miss Mary Kilkerney was chosen to fill the vacancy. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring secretary.

From Our Five o'clock Edition of Yesterday.

WILD WEST

Was Not in it With His Adventure.

JOHN O'GORMAN HELD UP ON CENTRAL STREET.

Was Afraid of Being "Ripped Up."

Even Lowell is not free from the insane shooting epidemic which has broken out all over the country.

This afternoon about 2.15 o'clock, as John O'Gorman, residing on Sslem street, was talking with two friends at the corner of Middlesex and Gorham streets, a lame man, about 50 years of age, well dressed, approached him with a remark.

O'Gorman turned his attention to the new comer who said:

"I'll rip you open with this if you get along" at the same time drawing forth a large jackknife.

"I guess you can," replied O'Gorman in doubt as to whether he was the victim of a joke or that of a lame man's insane notions.

"If I can't do it with that," continued the other, "I blow you open," flourishing a revolver in the face of O'Gorman, who immediately took to his heels and didn't stop until he had met Officers Walch and J. B. Crowley.

In the meantime the would-be brim blower slipped away towards the depot, and when caught up with by the officers denied that he had a revolver.

The officers searched him and found an empty revolver and unopened box of cartridges, two knifes, a twip clipper and numerous other articles.

At the station house he gave his name as Albion Dyke of New York, a traveling salesman for a gardening concern. He could give no reason for his actions, denying that he pulled out the revolver. He had been drinking and was evidently slightly demented. He was locked up.

FIREMEN'S PERIL.

OVERCOME BY GAS AND SMOKE IN A TENEMENT HOUSE

They Are Saved by the Bravery of a Brother Firemen Who Also Succumbs in His Rescue.

By Telegraph to THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 Fire broke out at midnight in the cellar of the five story brick tenement house, 19 East 3d st., and the flames made their way through to the ground floor occupied by butcher shops and a laundry.

The upper floors were crowded with sleeping tenants, who were hustled out by the firemen from their beds to the street in scant clothing.

During the course of the fire six firemen were overcome by gas and smoke in the cellar. Four of them were taken to Bellevue hospital.

The two other men revived soon after they were taken out.

Kerrigan, one of the men overcome, performed an act of bravery in bringing down a woman and child from the third floor, who was helpless from fright.

Kerrigan was then ordered to go into the cellar where the other firemen were.

He found them all lying on the floor unconscious from the smoke and gas.

He managed to give the alarm and call for assistance before he himself fell overcome, by the side of his brother firemen.

Three thousand dollars will cover the damage.

HAVERHILL, Nov. 2. The attractiveness of the young women of Haverhill proved too much for Frank Bedell of Lawrence. For a few hours last night he amused himself by attempting to scrape acquaintance with some of Haverhill's fair daughters, but one of the young women complained of his advances, and patrolman Smith sent him down to the station, where his tall hat, light coat and cane now hang on a nail. Bedell was tried today.

LAWTON'S

Record Impugned by the Boston Herald.

THE LOWELL CITIZEN AGAIN SEVERELY CASTIGATED.

Candidate Lawton's Advocacy of Corporation Interests Exposed.

It is about time for the city committee to begin to instruct voters upon marking their ballots. The large number of blanks cast at the state election should induce voters to be very cautious in crossing, first, the proper number of candidates, and secondly, in putting the crosses in the proper places.

Mayor Pickman received 6097 votes, Mr. Courtney 6065, a difference of 32 votes only. On the mayoralty vote there were 550 blanks, viz: ballots which were not properly marked or which were not marked at all.

Some voters think they will make matters sure by writing their names upon the ballots, while others try to be as accommodating as possible by giving each candidate a vote. It is not an uncommon occurence for voters to promise to vote for opposing candidates, and it may be in an honest endeavor to keep their word that they put two many crosses on their ballots. This must be avoided, for a ballot so marked is always thrown out and the good intentions of the voter go for naught. The safe and proper way to vote is to mark one cross opposite the name of each democratic candidate. Such a ballot will help elect John E. Russell, James B. Carroll, Peter J. Brady, William A Reade and all the other democratic nominees.

Every democrat and every republican who wants to hear the issues of the campaign fairly discussed, who wants to hear republican fallacies exposed and republican charges against the democracy refuted should go to the big rally in Huntington hall tonight. There will Governor Russell and Congressman McKettrick expound democratic principles and show the true causes of the financial stringency and the business depression.

The Citizen has for some time been muttering its disapproval of the anti-stock watering bills which were rejected by the Massachusetts senate before its adjournment last summer probably with the intention of explaining away or justifying Mr. Lawton's opposition to those same measures. After stating that the Citizen's words are as strong as if written by a corporation attorney, the Herald referring to this question says.

"The bills in question that our contemporary and Senator Lawton condemn were in accordance with the petitions of the state board of trade of Massachusetts and the associated board of trade of Boston. They were drawn up and submitted to some of the ablest legal authorities in the commonwealth, men who had had long and varied experience with railroad law, by the side of whom no disinterested authority that our Lowell contemporary can name could hold a candle. Men experienced in railroad administration so far as this related to state supervision had been carefully over them and had corrected the defects that might exist in them. Furthermore, it may be added that the only opposition to them before the committees, and so far as could be seen in the legislature itself, were the counsel of the interested corporations.

But we are told that the republican platform condemned these measures, instead of approving of them, as wrong in principle, impossible in practice and unworthy of the subject. It would be interesting to know if this is the republican candidate's view of the question. This is, no doubt, Senator Lawton's view, and he, as we have said, assisted in drafting the platform, and perhaps drew this particular plank."

This clinches the last nail in Lawton's political coffin. He is beyond question the most out and out advocate of corporation interests in this part of the state. When he shall have been defeated by Mr. Brady, Mr. Lawton will have no trouble in securing a position as corporation counsel.

The Boston Herald has this to say of the joint debate between Williams and Walker: "Mr. George F. Williams again vindicated his reputation as a keen and eloquent debater in his encounter with Mr. Walker at Worcester. There seems to have been little difference of opinion in the vast audience, composed of both republicans and democrats, as to the merits of the joint debate. The facts as well as the logic were all on the side of the young man from Dedham. Besides, he kept his temper, which is where he surpassed Mr. Walker again.

Tonight Governor Russell will commence speaking in Huntington hall at 7.45 o'clock in order to get to Lawrence in time to address a rally there. The hall will be densely crowded with men anxious to hear his views on the leading campaign issues.

Marcellus Fletcher will soon have the sample ballots on hand and will distribute them among those who may desire to have them. Every voter should know how to mark a ballot.

Already there is a kick among the anti-saloon league over that circular issued by Rev. Hugh Montgomery in favor of the republican ticket. Here is the objection of a prominent member: This league was organized as a non-partisan church institution. Here is one of its fundamental principles, as given in the constitution:

"Reserving the right to entertain individually our political preferences, we hold ourselves free from the denomination of the liquor power in our exercise of the elective franchise."

A circular issued by the league at the time of its organization says: "* * *

It is proposed to unite in this way in opposition to the saloon all voters of the commonwealth of whatever political party who can be reached through the instrumentality of the churches."

It is only just to say that the men whose names are published above this appeal are not responsible for this prostitution of the organization to the support of a platform and candidates which "ring hollow" on the temperance question. They were not consulted about the publication of their names.

NEW YORK DRUMMER

WHO PULLED A REVOLVER AND KNIFE YESTERDAY.

Tells Judge Hadley That He is a Very Nice Boy, and Chief Howard That He Knows Nothing About What He Don't Know.

Albion Dyke, the man who was arrested on Central street yesterday afternoon while sporting a revolver and knife, and who was supposed to be a crank was arraigned in court today on a charge of assault and battery on John O'Gorman. He pleaded not guilty.

John O'Gorman took the stand and testified that he was standing near the corner of Central and Middlesex streets, engaged in conversation with a friend, when Dyke, whom he had never seen before, approached him and drawing a knife said: "I'll rip you up with this." Then he drew a revolver and said: "I can blow you up with this." Witness became frightened and started off.

Officer Walsh testified to seeing the two men talking but did not know what was the matter. He was standing on the opposite side of the street when a man came across and told him what had happened. He went after Dyke, and when he arrested him he found a revolver, a box of cartridges and a knife in his pocket.

When Judge Hadley inquired of Dyke if he had any question he desired to ask the officer, he replied: "All I have to say is that he is a gentleman."

Dyke then said he bought the pistol for a friend. He told the court he was a drummer, and travelling men generally carry such things for protection.

In answer to a question by the chief he said: "I don't know any more about anything this man says than you know anything about something you don't know anything about."

Again he said to the chief: "The world-wide knows me, and I am a pretty nice boy." The court found Dyke guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $6 for assault and battery and $3 for drunkenness. Dyke paid with the remark that "he never spent so much money foolishly."

DEATHS.

Mary McLaughlin, aged 30 years, died Tuesday, at her home, 23 Charles street.

Ada A., aged 5 years, child of Charles E. and Eva B. Thompson, died yesterday at their home, on Jenness street.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cahill will be pained to hear of the death of their six-year-old son, George Henry Cahill, from inflammation of the bowels, after an illness of only three days. The little fellow passed away at 10 o'clock last night, and a ray of sunshine has gone out forever. Their affliction is very sad indeed, and it seems as if they were called upon to bear more than their share of life's burdens as Mr. Cahill is confined to his bed from rheumatism. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. Friends invited.

Grace McNamara, aged 3 years, child of Edward and Kate McNamara, died yesterday at their home, 47 Cross street. The funeral took place this afternoon and interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

Kelly, the jovial comrade; P. J. Furlong, the dramatic critic; and H. J. McDonald, the renowned ex-sprinter. On their return their many friends will be tendered an invitation to a repast of bear steak and venison.

Will Lose a Limb.

Harry Gifford, a lad 17 years of age, met with a sad mishap yesterday afternoon. He was driving Mr. A. L. Russell's horse near his home, 63 B street. The horse ran away and threw him into a cellar nearby causing a bad compound fracture of a leg. The boy was taken to St. John's hospital where the surgeons after consultation decided that amputation was necessary.

GEORGE OTIS

Imposes Upon the Credulity of a Girl.

BOTH ARE NOW MISSING FROM SPRINGFIELD.

He Was Married But Yet Deceived the Girl.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 2.—George H. Otis, a grocer at 445 Central street, has been missing since Monday night, and Miss Lena Kock, a handsome 18-year-old girl, who resided with her parents at 102 Wilcox street, has been missing since the same night, and her family, the police and Otis family are of the opinion that the couple have eloped, and are now either in New York or Boston.

A warrant has been issued for Otis' arrest on the charge of abduction. Otis has a wife and two children, and is about 30 years of age. According to Mrs. Kock and the sister of the missing girl, Otis has been paying attention to Lena for a year. He has called at the house two or three times a week, and gave his name as G. O. Young, and claimed to be a single man. He had not, as far as they know, proposed to the girl, but it was tacitly understood that they were the same as engaged.

Otis had presented Lena with many presents, and accompanied her to public places of entertainment. Last Monday Otis called at Miss Kock's and stayed a short time. After he had gone Lena said she was going out for a few moments, and left home. She did not return, and, inquiry being made at Mr. Otis' store, it was found that no such person as G. O. Young was there, and that Otis had not been there since the previous day.

Since Monday night Mrs. Kock, who is alone, her husband being away, and unconscious of the scandal, has gone from house to house almost frantic in her search for her daughter. Yesterday she gave the matter to the police.

A short time since there was a fire in Otis' store, and it is supposed that the insurance money and the proceeds of a fire sale have furnished the funds for his trip.

CASH BALANCE OF $2,500,000.

World's Fair Stockholders Lost Nothing by Their Investment.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The official figures of paid admissions to the fair up to the closing day are 21,469,441. Adding the number admitted on passes the total is 27,739,041. It is considered that these figures beat the record made at Paris. The total receipts of the Paris exposition were $8,300,000. The returns are not all yet in for the World's Columbian exposition, but they will not fall short of $14,000,000.

All obligations have been met and there is a cash balance on hand of $2,500,000. The gate receipts and the salvage from now on, it is expected, will pay the current expenses until the end, so that the stockholders, who have holdings representing $5,000,000, upon which they scarcely expected to realize anything, were paid 50 cents on $1.

Most of them, however, will contribute their stock to the Columbian museum. It is expected that $500,000 worth of this stock will be so donated, and with the gift of the museum by Marshall Field, the $100,000 by George M. Pullman and between $500,000 and $1,000,000 that is expected from others, will give the museum a working capital of over $3,000,000.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The funeral of Frank M. Sullivan, took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from his late home on Suffolk street and was very largely attended. The funeral cortege included a long line of carriages containing relatives and friends of the deceased. Among those present was a large delegation of young men, who had known the deceased through life. Many were former schoolmates of St. Patrick's parochial school; others had been associated with him while pursuing an advanced course of studies at Mt. St. Mary's college. Not a few were there who had met on the athletic field. His kindly disposition had endeared him to these and many others. The funeral procession wended its way toward the Catholic cemetery. Upon arrival there services of a simple but impressive character were conducted by Rev. Fr. Gleason of St. Patrick's church. At the conclusion of the services the remains were lowered to the grave, while those about offered a prayer for the repose of his soul.

The top of the grave was completely covered with flowers, prominent among the offerings being a floral gates ajar from the Lowell wine clerks; standing wreath and sickle, from J. B. Cahill, W. F. Fitzgerald, James H. Smith, P. H. McDonough and James Hearn; pillow from Mr. and Mrs. John J. Murray; bunch of chrysanthemums, from John J. Madden; large pillow from the family of the deceased; bunch of white roses from the Misses Smaller; bunch of chrysanthemums from Mrs. J. E. Simpson; basket of flowers from the Misses Fitzgerald; lyre and star, the Misses Sullivan; bunch of roses, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sheehan; bunch of roses, E. B. Quinn and wife.

The bearers were W. D. Madden and John J. Madden of Boston; Wm. H. Fitzgerald and James Hearn, Lowell; John J. Ryan, W. D. Harrington, Richard Fitzgerald, Salem; and W. J. Jordan, Lowell.

Among the former classmates at Mt. St. Mary's college, present were: W. J. Campell, J. E. Ingoldsby, Jos. D. Cavanaugh, N. J. Madden. W. F. Cashman, William Nagle, Boston: W. F. Cullen, Spruce Creek, P. A.; Joseph H. Malone, J. Teague John J. Dyer, J. Brogan, William Fitzgerald and James Hearn, Lowell.

REPEAL BILL

Promptly Passed in the National House.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS NONPLUSSED BY SPEAKER CRISP'S TACT.

The Bill Has Been Signed by President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Silver purchases by the government closed last evening. The purpose for which Mr. Cleveland called congress in extraordinary session was accomplished at 4:25 yesterday afternoon, when he affixed his signature to the bill to repeal unconditionally the purchase clause of the Sherman law. The struggle in the house was short. Only 27 men could be rallied for the last stand by the silver leaders, Messrs. Bland and Bryan.

Mr. Bland and his colleagues, knowing that further opposition was futile, preferred to sacrifice the opportunity for a few hours' debate offered by Mr. Wilson in order to force the majority to bring in the cloture and concur in the senate amendment by duress. But even in this they failed.

Their small following might have succeeded had they been led by experienced and skillful parliamentary tacticians. Neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Snodgrass, his lieutenant, is well versed in parliamentary procedure, and when thrown off their guard by a momentary distraction, they exposed their flank by failing to follow one filibustering motion with another.

Speaker Crisp overwhelmed them by putting the pending motion to order the previous question. It was carried with a roar. The filibusterers had been caught napping, and nothing remained for them to do except to submit. For 30 minutes, under the rule, followed the rattle of oratory amid the greatest confusion and excitement. At its conclusion the vote was taken on Mr. Bland's free coinage substitute. The majority was 73 against it.

Then came the final vote on concurring in the senate amendments. The vote stood 193 for concurrence and 94 against. When the original bill passed the house Aug. 28 the vote was 201 to 100, so that although the total vote yesterday was smaller the proportion was practically the same.

The Climax.

The final vote was taken at 2.50 p. m. The bill was engrossed immediately, and in 20 minutes, at 3:10, the formal announcement was made to the senate that its amendment had been agreed to by the house. The bill was hurriedly enrolled by Chairman Pearson of the committee on enrolled bills, and at 3:30 was presented to Speaker Crisp for his signature.

A fleet-footed messenger carried it to the senate, where it was signed two minutes later by Vice President Stevenson. Chairman Pierson, with the bill under his arm, entered a carriage waiting for him on the plaza in front of the Capitol and drove rapidly to the White House.

The president had been kept duly advised of the progress of events. Indeed, he manifested so much interest in the vote in the house that at his request a duplicate of the names of those who had voted for or against the concurrence was made soon after the rollcall was completed, and this list was lying on his desk when Mr. Pearson arrived with the bill. Secretary Carlisle, Attorney General Olney and Private Secretary Thurber were present.

After felicitating with each other for a few moments over the victory that had been achieved, the president took up the engrossed copy of the bill and read it aloud. Then picking up a quill pen he affixed his autograph at 4:25. And thus 85 days 4 hours and 25 minutes after the extraordinary session convened the remedy for the financial distress, which Mr. Cleveland demanded in his message, was applied.

The analysis of the vote shows that 124 Democrats, 68 Republicans and one Populist, Cannon of California, voted for concurrence, and 70 Democrats, 15 Republicans and nine Populists against the motion. The following members voted for the Bland free coinage substitute and also for concurrence:

Alderson, Black of Georgia, Brookshire, Donovan, Edmunds of Virginia, Geary, Holman, Richardson, Mitchell, Marshall, Turpin, Post and Tyler, while Neill, Weaver and Kyle, who voted for the free coinage substitute, did not vote on the final vote.

EPIDEMIC OF GLANDERS

Causing Alarm Among Owners of Horses at Concord, N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 2—Glanders in a bad form have appeared among horses here. The first case developed in the stables of the state asylum for insane, on Monday last, and the disease quickly spread, infecting several animals that occupied neighboring stalls.

A veterinary was summoned, who, in turn, called State Cattle Commissioner Bachelder. The latter inoculated the horses with malein, the late European discovery, and established the fact that five of the seven sick animals had glanders of a bad type. These he ordered killed, and the stables, which were thoroughly disinfected, will not again be used.

Another case appeared yesterday in a grocer's horse, which has been drinking daily at a public fountain on one of the principal street corners. This horse was also killed, but it is feared that the infection may have been communicated to many valuable horses through the drinking fountain.

A LIFE OF CRIME

Ended in a Summary Manner by a Mob of Virginians.

RICHMOND, Nov. 2.—Notorious Abe Redmond, one of the most desperate men in Virginia, came to his death in Charlotte county at the hands of a mob. He was arrested day before yesterday by an officer and a dozen assistants. A few days ago he was looking for a negro whom he wanted to kill. He got the wrong one, but did not let him go until he had beaten him nearly to death.

About 11 o'clock at night two of his guards were asleep. The door was broken in with a crash, and guards and prisoners were covered with pistols. Without a word the prisoner was taken out. The body was found hanging from a tree. Redmond's life was full of crime.

She Will Marry Yung Kwai.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass, Nov. 2.—A sensation has been caused here by the marriage engagement of Miss May Burnham, daughter of Mrs. Florence I. W. Burnham, to Yung Kwai, a young member of the Chinese legation in New York. Yung Kwai attended the high school here for several years, and then went to Yale university, of which he is a graduate.

Ingalls' Opinion.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 2 Ex Senator Ingalls lectured here last night to several thousand people. In an interview he said the poor times is not the outcome of the silver discussion. The need of money is the cause The people want both gold and silver and plenty of it. He did not think Cleveland would allow any radical changes in the tariff.

Highwaymen In Maine.

CAMDEN, Me., Nov. 2.—A. B. Ward of Gilbertsville, Mass., and E. E Hosmer of Camden were held up by two men in the woods between Camden and Rockport and ordered to give up their money or lives. For Governor:

For Lieut.-Governor:

JAMES B. CARROLL.

For Senator:

PETER J. BRADY.

THE WORLD'S Fair closed like a funeral service, but it was nevertheless an unparalled success.

THE APPLICANTS for relief at the pauper department are numerous and many of them are undeserving. The same may be said of many who apply for employment at the office of the superintendent of streets.

LYNN is agitating against the distribution of hand bills on the streets. That is right, pass and ordinance against it, as did Lowell. It is a common nuisance to have a fakir stick circulars often of the nastiest character into the hands, pockets and clothing of passers by. No decent city would tolerate such an abuse.

IT WOULD have been well for Mr. Lawton, the senatorial candidate, if he had paid the Citizen for keeping silent. He may be called upon to settle for what it had to say of him although it brought upon his head the wrath of the Boston Herald. His labor record is notable as being uniformly opposed to labor measures.

MR. GREENHALGE'S criticism of Gov. Russell for appointing the successor to David Hall Rice, is far fetched. He says the constitution says the governor "may" appoint, not "shall" appoint. The "may" leaves it entirely optional with the governor, and if he has chosen to fill a temporary vacancy in the executive council he has a perfect right to do so.

WILLIAM A. READE of Lowell should receive a majority of 2500 votes in this city. It is for the best interests of this city to elect him in order to displace Commissioner Read and break the county ring which sells out the interests of the county to corporations, to private individuals, to their personal friends and political supporters. Mr. Reade would make an incorruptible official and one who could neither be bribed nor bought.

THE REV. Hugh Montgomery has issued a circular giving his alleged reasons as to why he votes with the republican party in preference to any other. He says he favors the republican party because it has without flinching and without compromise pledged hostility to the liquor traffic. It is but a short time since prohibitionists were assailing the republican party for adopting a hypocritical policy on this question and for claiming to oppose the saloon while at the same time openly supporting it. But Mr. Montgomery is not a prohibitionist now. We know not whether he is a teetotaler, but he says he is with the republican party. So much the worse for the party. Such a disturber will alienate five votes for every one he will bring to the party. He is now a member of the party that keeps the prohibitionists from getting a place on the state ticket.

THE JOINT DEBATE

Shirtsleeves Walker was vanquished in the joint debate with Hon. George Fred Williams in Worcester on Tuesday night. Walker's groundless assertions were exposed and the responsibility for the financial stringency and the business depression saddled firmly upon the republican party. Mr. Williams read a letter written by Mr. Cleveland in 1885 predicting the financial stringency if the hoarding of silver and the depletion of gold were not checked. The stringency, the business depression came as predicted and the decision of congress to abandon the purchase of silver is the remedy laid down by Cleveland eight years ago. This fell like a thunderbolt on Mr. Walker and he was utterly confounded, while the crowd cheered for Williams.

REPEAL WILL RESTORE CONFIDENCE.

Now that repeal has been passed confidence will return in due time despite the statements of the calamity howlers. It will be their policy to cast doubt upon this statement and to do all that in them lies to neutralize the effect of repeal until after election day.

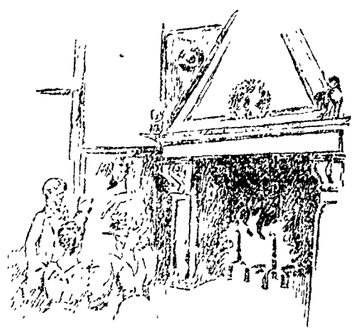

The manufacturers can keep their mills closed or else running on short time as a matter of party accommodation, and the manipulators of the stock market can offset any improvement that may appear within the coming week. With these precautions the republican stump speakers will tell the people that repeal has brought no change, that the real cause of the business depression is distrust as to the new tariff arrangements.

It is obvious that the effect of any such measure cannot be instantaneous, that some time will be required to bring about a change for the better, and it is still as clear that such a change will follow as a direct result of the repeal bill. The drain of gold from the treasury will be stopped, the piling up of silver is at an end, and confidence in the government credit will soon be fully restored.

The democratic administration has been assailed for not fulfilling its pledges. The repeal bill has been passed as the first and most urgent thing promised. It was said some time ago that the democratic party did not mean to fulfil its pledges, but that statement has been falsified in one instance at least. It is now stated by republicans that repeal will not bring a change for the better in industrial circles. That too will soon be proved false.

"But, my good woman," replied the earl, "dreams go by the contrary."

"Indade, then, yer honor is to send the tay and her ladyship the tobacey," was the quick witted reply.—New York Ledger.

IT WAS NO USE.

And Realizing It Was Hopeless He Finally Succumbed.

The cable car was going at full speed. It is the manner of this sort of vehicle that it does not gain acceleration gradually after starting, but goes on the jump at the end of the first dozen feet.

At this critical moment a young colored man dashed across the street and swung himself upon the grip car. Just at the same instant a shriek was heard, and a comely woman of African descent and robust physique made a sprint after the traction train. Though the latter was by this time going at about 20 miles an hour, she made a grab at the rail on the last platform and became a passenger by sheer force of muscle and athletic dexterity.

It did not take her half a minute to make her way forward to the grip car and take the seat beside the young colored man, who was much astonished to see her. Said he:

"Whar you gwine?"

"Gwine whar I gwine," she replied loftily and with an air of assumed indifference.

"Whar's dat?"

"Wid you."

"Whuffo?"

"Just 'cause."

"'Cause why?"

"'Cause I feel like it."

"Well, I don't want you follerin me."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar Thompson, I'm gwine to keep my eyes on you."

"I ain't gwine to have it," protested the colored man. "You git right offen dis car, now I tell you."

"Pooh!" responded the young woman contemptuously.

"You hear what I say!"

"Yeppy."

"Ain't you gwine to mind?"

"Not if dis lady knows herself."

"You gotter."

"I won't."

The young man looked disgusted. After spending a minute or two in reflection, an idea struck him, and he said triumphantly:

"You cain't ride, 'cause you ain't got no money."

"You kin pay my fare."

"I won't do it."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar, you'ze a low down man. If I'd knowed you 'fore I married you as I do now, you'd have had to git some other lady fer a wife."

"Stop yer foolishness an git off de car," he replied sullenly.

"I ain't a-gwine to."

"Then you'll git put off."

Just then the conductor came forward to take up the fares in the grip car. The colored man refused to pay for the woman, who addressed an eloquent appeal to the knight of the bell punch.

"This yere is my husband," she said. "I'se got a s'picion dat he's got a meetin on hand wif anudder woman. He got on de car to git rid of me, and I follered to keep an eye on him. I s'pose you're a gemman, and you wouldn't chuck a lady off."

The conductor had a heart, as was evident when he replied:

"Stay on. I'll pay your fare myself."

This happy turn of events caused the young woman to giggle consummately. The man, on the other hand, expressed his disgust with vague and semiarticulate mutterings. All of this had happened while the car was going three blocks.

Just as the cable train was traveling at its most rapid gait between two corners, the recalcitrant husband jumped to his feet without warning and leaped off the car. Evidently he supposed that his wife would not dare to imitate the maneuver, but he reckoned without his host. With a flying bound she sprang off and after him. In 20 seconds she had caught him and grabbed him by the arm.

"Now, you fool nigger," she exclaimed, "just come straight home wid me."

"I'm a-comin," rejoined the man sullenly, evidently recognizing the situation as hopeless from his point of view. And the two walked away arm in arm.—Washington Post.

I had a continuous headache, my back burned a elbow, and my friends thought I must die. My strength left me and my urine also. This was my condition last February when I commenced to take before the first bottle was gone, there was a great improvement. My friends wanted to know what became of such a sight in me. I replied "DANA'S SARSAPARILLA." I am now taking my third bottle and consider myself at the age of 50, after Doctors had failed, a CURED MAN.

MATABLES

At Fort Victoria Suffer An Overwhelming Defeat.

KING LOBENGULA MADE A HASTY RETREAT.

Three Thousand of His Men Killed and Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 2—A dispatch to The Daily News from Fort Victoria says that the Matabeles have been routed, and that the intense anxiety, which has so long existed, is now relieved. All the advancing columns held a share in the skirmishing on the march, which was necessarily slow. On Friday the Matabele impis opened a determined attack on the command of Forbes.

LOBENGULA.

The fight was vigorously sustained, but the Matabeles could make no impression on the white forces, who held a position in the Laager. The Matabeles were mowed down on all sides and finally were compelled to retire with heavy loss. Fresh impis resumed the attack next day, Major Forbes and the combined columns being then within a few miles of Buluwayo. The blacks fought with bravery, as was expected of them, but in face of the machine guns and unerring rifles of the whites they could never get within striking distance.

Flight of the Matabeles.

Finally the attack weakened and the Matabeles showed signs that they were about to retreat. Then Major Forbes gave the order to charge. The Maxim guns were placed upon the dense masses of natives, and the whites instantly afterward rushed upon the wavering warriors. The Imbizo regiment attempted to stand their ground, but over half of them were shot down and the remainder fled back to Buluwayo.

It may be said that this practically was the decisive battle of the campaign. King Lobengula commanded the Matabele in person. He directed the movements of his head men, and he retreated to Buluwayo after the battle. The white forces decided to make a forward movement at once before the blacks could have time to rally. The combined columns opened the attack upon Buluwayo, but there was little fight left in the Matabeles, and they fled in a northwesterly direction, King Lobengula with them. A flying column was at once made up to pursue and harass them, although it is believed that the Matabeles have been thoroughly beaten and cowed and that Lobengula's power is gone.

The loss to the Chartered company's forces was only slight, and was mainly confined to the column commanded by Major Forbes. The Matabele loss is reported to exceed 30,000 killed and wounded. The imperial forces under Colonel Adams reached Buluwayo yesterday from the occupation by the settlers, hoping the Matabeles could be driven beyond Zambesi before the rainy season sets in, so as to avoid further fighting in the spring.

A dispatch to The Times from Fort Charter says that it is reported that Lobengula has gone to the Mateppo hills with the remainder of his impis. If this be true, he will be completely trapped. It is more likely, however, that he has retreated toward the Zimbesi. It is possible that the remainder of the impi may kill Lobengula. Administrator Jameson will remain at Buluwayo as administrator.

Germans Are Worried.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The Cologne Gazette has received a dispatch from Cape Town giving alarming reports of the condition of affairs in German Southwest Africa. It is stated that Chief Witbooi and his followers have had a quarrel with the colonial troops near Horkams, and that several Germans, including Lieutenant Francois, have been killed and the German settlements burned. The reports have not been confirmed.

A Fight In the Soudan.

TRIPOLI, Nov 2—There has been heavy fighting in the Soudan. Rabak, the ex-slave of Zobeir Pasha, recently revolted against the Sultan of Wedday, but was defeated. He rallied his forces and made fierce war upon the people of Bornou, and captured several towns about Lake Chad. Rabak has burned and pillaged Boghirmi, the capital, and other towns. The inhabitants have fled to Bornou, to which territory the sultan has dispatched 40,000 soldiers to co-operate with the 25,000 sent by the Sultan of Wedday to attack Lugun, which place Rabak has occupied The warfare now in progress has caused all the caravan routes to be closed.

Asphyxiated.

DETROIT, Nov 2—Colonel Gilbert S. Jennings, U. S. A., retired, died last night, aged 76. He was found in his bed in an unconscious condition, the result of inhaling gas. Whether he blew the light out or whether in turning it off he accidentally reopened the stopper is unknown.

The Melilla Engagement.

ARMS FOR BRAZIL.

Belief That Another Very Large Shipment Has Been Made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Antonio de Castilho, consul general in New York for President Peixoto's government, sailed on the steamer Wordsworth yesterday afternoon for Pernambuco. Although De Castilho is in poor health, it is considered significant that he should leave his post these critical times in his country. Men acquainted with Brazilian affairs gave it as their opinion that De Castilho is going to Brazil with regard to the purchase of ships for a navy.

His familiarity with maritime affairs will enable him to tell President Peixoto the exact strength of the vessels which Flint & Co. have purchased and expect to purchase. It is said that a large shipment of arms for the Brazilian army was made yesterday. The story was that the arms were loaded on a sailing vessel, which was to be overtaken by a steamer, and the arms transferred at sea.

The brig Reindeer cleared for San Jose Do Norte, a Brazilian port, ostensibly loaded with 250 tons of coal, and the indications pointed to her as the craft that carried the arms.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—The Brazilian government has purchased through Charles E. Flint & Co. the magnificent steamer Britannia of the North Atlantic Steamship company's fleet. The price paid for her was $225,000.

SYNDICATE OF FORGERS

Will Have to Explain Their Misdeeds to Officers of the Law.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Joseph O. Hayes, 18 years old, a messenger employed by Coffin & Stanton, brokers; Henry D. Garrett, alias Loper, 31 years old; James D. Buchanan, 47 years old; "Manufacturer" John T. Brush, 52 years old, and Sedlow W. Crow, better known as Dr. C W. Selden, 57 years old, were indicted by the grand jury and remanded by Judge Martine to the Tombs.

They are charged with the planning and successful carrying out of a forging scheme on a large scale. Two checks were forged, drawn on the Manhattan company and certified to by that bank, purporting to be signed by Coffin & Stanton. One of the checks was for $3150 and the other for $5066.66. The checks were deposited in the Garfield National bank on Sept. 28 and Oct. 22, respectively, and had been drawn against until only $7.50 remained. Inspector McLaughlin got wind of the swindle 10 days ago.

PENNOYER'S PLEA.

A Whack at the Silver Question In His Thanksgiving Proclamation.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 2.—Governor Pennoyer yesterday issued the following thanksgiving proclamation:

I do hereby appoint the fourth Thursday of the present month as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings he has bestowed upon this commonwealth during the present year. God has indeed been most beneficent to our state and nation. And yet, unjust and ill-advised congressional legislation, having made gold alone a full legal tender money, has so dwarfed and paralyzed business that the bounties of Providence are now denied to hundreds of thousands of people within the national domain, who not only are without employment, but also without the means of procuring food, raiment or shelter.

While, therefore, the people of Oregon return thanks to God for his goodness, I do most earnestly recommend that they devoutly implore him to dispose the president and congress of the United States to secure restoration of silver as full legal tender money, in accordance with the policy of the fathers of the republic, whereby our industries may be revived and honest toilers of the land may procure their daily bread, not as alms, but as a reward of their labor.

DOZEN DROWNED.

Electric Street Car Plunges Into a River at Portland, Or.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 2.—An electric car plunged through the open draw of the Madison street bridge yesterday, and sank in the Willamette river. There were 18 or 20 passengers aboard, and all but seven saved their lives by leaping from the car. Five bodies have been recovered.

When the car arrived at the bridge a dense fog enveloped the river and a sharp frost covered the rails with a coating of ice. The draw had just been opened to allow the passage of a steamer, and the usual precautions of closing the gates and displaying the red signal lights had been taken. Owing to the frost, however, the car could not be stopped in the usual distance and crashed through the frail gate and into the river.

The motorman, when he saw he could not stop the car, gave the alarm to the passengers, and as many as had time saved themselves by jumping. The car plunged into the river just in front of the bow of the steamer.

JAMES WHITE'S DEATH.

Circumstances Indicate That Murder Has Been Committed.

WINSTED, Conn., Nov. 2.—Coroner Higgins made discoveries which caused him to order an autopsy on the body of James L. White, who was found dead in his watch box in the yards of the Philadelphia, Reading and New England railroad at Chapinsville Tuesday.

Patrick Finnigan, a section boss, noticed smoke issuing from White's watch box. He investigated and found White dead. The floor was covered with blood, and on the floor were several large stones besmeared with blood.

The dead man's face was frightfully bruised, as was his body. The house was afire, and the flames had also somewhat burned the body. Medical Examiner Birtch of Salisbury was summoned, and, after examining the body, refused to allow it to be buried.

Everything points to murder, but there is no clew upon which to work.

White was 33 years of age and leaves a family in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Firemen Overcome by Smoke.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Fire broke out at midnight in a five-story brick tenement at Third street and the Bowery. Twelve families resided there, and they were all immediately ordered out. Six firemen were overcome by the smoke. Two of them were resuscitated, and the other four taken to Bellevue hospital.

Murderous Robbers.

WEEPING WATER, Neb., Nov. 2.—Mathew Ackerman, living near here, was murdered yesterday by two men, who came, it is said, for the purpose of robbery. They shot Mr. Ackerman first and then his son Tom in the head, making a slight wound; then the hired man was shot in the leg and Mrs. Ackerman over the heart.

Delaware Folks Don't Like It.

WILMINGTON, Del, Nov. 2.—The free use of the pardoning power by Governor Reynolds is causing much comment. He has thus far extended clemency to 24 convicts, at which rate he will have pardoned 32 at the expiration of his term. His predecessors have averaged about six pardons each.

Failed For a Million.

DES MOINES, Nov. 2.—J. C. Savery, proprietor of the Savery hotel, one of the largest in Iowa, has assigned. Savery is also president of the American Emigrant company of New York, and is largely interested in several mines in Montana. The assets are estimated at $1,000,000.

Editor Wouldn't Retract.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—Herr Hariche, editor of The Tageblatt, who was recently shot at by General Von Kirchof, was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for an insult to an official and to 40 marks fine for refusing to publish a correction of the insult referred to.

"Funny" Vermonters.

RUTLAND, Vt., Nov. 2.—Frank Archibald, state attorney of Bennington county, was hanged in effigy at Manchester Centre. On the effigy was a placard which read: "Rum did it," and "Our State Attorney."

Crushed to Death.

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 2.—While working under the bank near the stone crusher at the city farm the bank caved in upon John F. Eastman and killed him. He was about 70 years of age.

Gotham Policeman Suicides.

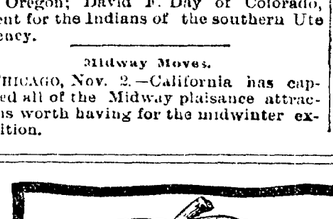

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Edward Young, 36 years old, attached to the Sixth precinct as a patrolman, committed suicide last night by shooting himself through the heart.

Victim of Fire.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—At a fire in a lodging house at Chestnut and Commercial streets last night one man was burned to death.

Murdered by a Rival.

PROCTOR, O., Nov. 2.—John Floyd was shot dead here while sitting with his arm about Miss Lucy White's waist. The young woman received enough shot to disfigure her for life. Harry Smith, a rival for the hand of Miss White, was the assassin. He escaped.

OUR THEATRES.

OPERA HOUSE—The banner night of the season was that of last evening on the occasion of the Salvini engagement. Standing room was even at a premium. Of Salvini and his company in Dumas' wonderful historical romance only words of highest praise can be given. From beginning to end it was an artistic creation complete in every detail and interpreted by clever people. Salvini as Philippi D'Artagnan was instantly the favorite and his assumption of the young Gascon was a character, such as Dumas' has given the world. Lively and energetic as he was in the use of his faithful "Bobby" he showed his inherited histionic talents whenever the part required it. His reception throughout was most hearty and vigorous. It was likewise a treat again to see William Redmond as Athos, and William Harris as Porthos, both of whom were ideal characters in their parts, and upon them the audience bestowed much attention. Miss Moretti as Anne of Austria, superbly presented the part. Miss Dixon was a charming Constance in both appearance and acting. The character which perhaps received an especial share of attention was that of the great cardinal, Richelieu, and Mr. Johnson, in the part, interpreted the lines with remarkable success. It is not an easy part to play by any means.

Of the remainder of the cast Mr. Lane was not the Buckingham which a reader of history would expect to see on the stage; Miss De Forrest as Lady De Winter was clever as Richelieu's spy, and excellent in her emotional acting. The remainder of the cast was undeniably good although the parts being insignificant in comparison, the people taking them did not shine as resplendent as the stars.

Taking the play as a whole it was a delightful and refreshing evening of legitimate drama, and one that proved that the stage is not entirely pre-empted by comedy and burlesque. The costuming and staging was of the best, and the audience proved the warmest in enthusiasm of the season.

On Saturday evening Charles E. Davies will present Uncle Tom's Cabin, with Peter Jackson as Uncle Tom. Between the acts Jackson and the young Californian Choynski will spar.

While it is undeniably strange that such an original, brilliant and witty a creation as Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" should have scarcely half a score of revivals during the whole history of the English speaking stage, it is doubtless due to the fact that not on an average of once in a generation is an actor produced whose natural gifts and accomplishments fit him to adequately portray the subtle, but quaint and rollicking whimsicalities of either of the two Dromios. Next Monday evening, Stuart Robson will be seen as one of the Dromios.

Richardson, under whose administration the company has been placed upon a dividend paying basis.

The members of the Lowell branch of the Women's Alliance entertained about 100 members of other branches from Ayer, Groton, Littleton, Waltham, Arlington, Cambridge, Lexington and East Lexington, in the parlors of the Unitarian church Tuesday. There were addresses by Mrs. Annie B. Richardson, Rev. Mr. Batchelor and Rev. Mr. Littlefield of Ayer, and Mrs. E. P. Judkins read a report of the last meeting. Miss Helen A. Whittier reviewed the success of the "cheerful letter" work. The exercises began at 11 A. M. and lasted till 3 30 P. M., and at noon a palatable dinner was served.

CHILD LABOR.

A BIG DECREASE IN IT REPORTED BY CHIEF WADE.

Violations Have Been Few and Manufacturers Have Generally Obeyed the Law—Reports of District Officers.

The state factory inspectors have reported to Rufus B. Wade, chief of the district police, that there has been a marked decrease in the number of violations of the child labor law the past year.

While last year there were over 3000 violations reported there has been but 253 children under 14 years of age found at work in factories this year.

In his report made to the legislature last year, Chief Wade stated that in 4380 manufacturing and mercantile establishments in the state, 1656 children between the ages of 13 and 14 years of age were employed.

This statement showed plainly that the child labor law, which provides that all children under 14 years of age shall attend school 20 weeks during the year, had been violated. That something should be done to prevent this violation was the conclusion reached by Chief Wade, and he immediately set to work.

From reports recently submitted to him, the chief reports that there have been 3457 inspections made during the year, and only 253 children under the age limit have been found employed.

For some weeks Mrs. Fanny B. Ames, one of the inspectors, has been investigating, and her reports have been quite satisfactory.

In 1880, when the child labor act was in its youth and not as stringent as at the present time, children under 13 years of age were employed by thousands in all the manufacturing centers, and owing to the condition of affairs which existed then the necessity of making the law what it is today was shown.

Since that time the superintendents of large manufacturing concerns have voluntarily refused to employ children under the age limit, and it is partially owing to this fact that the great decrease is due.

Truant officers, formerly very derelict in their duty, are today materially assisting in the work of reform. Their aid in this work is invaluable, as they possess information which it would be extremely difficult for other officials to secure.

Contrary to the general impression, children at work under the age of limit are not in the main employed in large industrial establishments, but in small shops and stores. In Boston very few children under 14 years are employed, though several years ago hundreds of children under that age were to be found at work in stores.

Mrs. Ames says that in all her experience she has never noted so few children employed, and it is her opinion that in time the law will be but seldom violated. The parents, she says, have awakened to the advantages of education, and they endeavor more strongly than in previous years to keep their children in school.

There were 11,855 minors found employed in the different factories, but only 253 were under the age limit.

RABBIT HUNTING.

How it Should be Done to Avoid Law Breaking.

On the street the past few days have been seen many men burdened with shot guns and accompanied by dogs. Out in Dracut the reports of firearms are frequently heard indicating that there is considerable hunting, even though the Rod and Gun club is not holding its annual shoot.

Of the New England game there is none that is so persistently and systematically pursued illegally as the rabbit. By its peculiar nature it invites the breaking of a state law that was made to protect it. The use of a ferret is prohibited under the statutes, but there is hardly a rabbit hunter who goes into the woods without a "monkey" or "joker," as the ferret is called. And notwithstanding the degree of persistency with which the rabbit is followed by the hunter, pursued by the nimble beagle and routed from its hole by the ferret, it thrives and multiplies beyond comprehension.

The wild rabbit, like the domesticated animal breeds frequently, and the litters are generally very numerous, some being as large as 15, but an ordinary litter contains about seven. The young rabbits breed at an early stage, and the supply is thereby kept above demand. The rabbits breed in the thick brier patches on top of the ground, under the sheltering shade of the scrub oaks, and in their domiciles in the ground.

The youngsters take to living easily, and in a few days will scamper about in a most lively manner. A dry season, such as has been experienced this year, is conducive to a goodly supply, and this accounts for the great number this year, old hunters claiming that never before have they seen them so plentiful in this vicinity.

The rabbits run in the night, and the woods where they make their stamping ground is traversed with paths leading in all directions. Hopping along from clump to clump picking up the nuts and berries of the woods and nibbling at the fresh vegetable growths, they may be seen on any moonlight night. Into the neighboring gardens they will wander, cropping the dainty tidbits from the garden sauce and selecting the most valuable plants to feed upon.

After feeding they will scamper away for a frolic, and then they will be seen circling about in a merry go round chasing each other and reveling in high glee. By the break of day they have worn themselves out and retire to the cover for rest and sleep, only to be driven out by the dogs, which have sprung them from their resting place by running upon them or had taken the fresh trail and unravelled it until they had reached the end and their reward.

The rabbit is of little value as a food product until after the frosts have covered the land for a few nights. Then the flesh becomes a subject for the epicure. Hunted by day, the rabbit offers fine sport, while those who desire the game for the table and market hunt it by night. The rabbits at this season of the year are found near the wet lands, having their burrows on the hill sides surrounding the sloughs and swamps. Leading to the holes are the many intricate paths, and every hole has an outlet, so that the rabbit may make its entrance by one hole and its exit by the other.

In places where there are boulders shattered so that a hole may be dug beneath them, they will burrow in order to insure them against the attack of the spade and bar when run to earth.

The best time of day to follow them is at early morn. Then they have ceased their night's frolic and the trail that they have left is fresh. With a still morning it is an easy matter for the hounds to unravel the trail and rout the rabbit out, but if there is a wind blowing the task becomes difficult.

COMPLAIN OF CUT-DOWN.

Weavers on the Appleton Report a Decrease in Their Wages.

Justice Assembly, K. of L., met last evening and discussed several important matters.

Several new members were initiated and the recent reduction of 25 per cent. in the wages of the fancy weavers on the Crompton looms was taken up.

A delegation of the weavers was present and claimed that none but skilled weavers can run this work and in their opinion the cut down is injust.

It was stated that before the cut-down the weavers on the Appleton were receiving $1.50 per week less than is paid for the same work in North Adams and Fitchburg; and now when this reduction is made, the wages will be about two thirds of those paid in the above mentioned places. The delegates claim that they were somewhat surprised on reading in an account of a recent meeting of the Church league that Rev. Mr. Wright had stated that the Appleton company had decided to run its mills at a loss, in order to furnish employment to its operatives. It does not look as though they intended to lose much, when they have already begun to reduce wages.

It was voted to bring the matter of the reduction before the notice of the national organization.

A communication was received from the secretary of the National organization, K. of L., asking that a boycott be placed upon all matter published by George Munro of New York city.

After some discussion it was voted to declare a boycott and to bring the matter to the attention of the Central Labor Union at its next meeting.

Miss Delia Conners resigned her position as financial secretary owing to removal from the city and Miss Mary Kilkerney was chosen to fill the vacancy. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring secretary.

The Coming Events.

Among the events for the future for which tickets have been issued are the annual balls of the Firemen's Relief association and the Police Relief association, the latter to occur January 2d, 1894.

NATURALIZATION.

JUDGE HADLEY OPPOSED TO HOLDING NIGHT SESSIONS.

He Gives Advice to the Managers of Political Parties—They Are Not to Wait Till Election Day Nor to Bring in Ineligible Parties.

The following opinion from Judge Hadley upon the manner and means of naturalizing foreign born residents in the police court, is given by the Mail and being of special importance because of the judge expressing his intention to demand more careful preparation of candidates, is well worth perusal:

"I should like to have it publicly announced," said he, "that we have held the last evening session for naturalization in the Lowell police court. With the duty which now devolves upon the officers of the court it is too much to ask us, after the arduous duty of the day is over, to come to the court room and sit for two hours or more in an atmosphere vitiated by a crowd that is none too tidy at the best, and decide hurriedly upon papers that should receive deliberate consideration. It requires the closest attention to see that everything is properly prepared, but if we should take the time necessary to do strict justice in every case there would be at the delay. I propose hereafter to hold special sessions for naturalization on Saturday afternoons, but of course we shall be prepared to attend to all such cases during the regular sessions of the court.

"I am aware that this plan may not be favorably received by the engineers of either political party, about election time when they go through the city with a drag net and gather in a drove of candidates to be put through before election day comes. But I wish to have it distinctly understood that the court does not sit for this purpose, simply to gain voters; our purpose is to make citizens. That is what they are naturalized for, and not simply to issue the final papers on time to allow the newly-pledged citizens to go before the board of registrars on the last day of their session.

"If this were the only time that the candidates could legally present themselves there would be some excuse for it. There may be some instances where such is the case, but they are very few.

"What I mean is this: The law requires that every person who desires to become a citizen shall first file an application, stating when he arrived in the country, which shall be sworn to by two witnesses. The law also requires that he shall have been in the country five years before he takes out his final papers, but he cannot take them out until two years from the time he makes the application. If a person makes an application upon first arriving in this country he must wait five years before the final papers are taken out, but if he resides here three years and then makes the application he can take out the final papers when the two years have expired. He is not required to do so, by law, immediately upon the expiration of the two years he may do it any time afterwards. That time may have expired six months ago, but the candidate takes no interest in the matter in most cases, until just before election, when they are "brad-awled" by the party leaders and come in droves at a night session.

"As I have said before our object in naturalization is to make citizens and not voters particularly.

We Don't Run the Police Court

in the interest of any party and we don't propose to have any politics in our administration of affairs if we kuow it. If foreigners desire to become citizens they should be interested enough to call for their final papers earlier in the season and not wait to be whipped in by those who take no interest in them except to qualify them as voters in time for election. It is not in keeping with the dignity of any court of justice to be a party to any such political engineering and I propose to stop it.

"I don't wish to be understood as being peculiar in this respect. We have discussed this subject at meetings of the municipal justices and we are all agreed the duty imposed upon us is abused and it is time for a reform.

Another radical change that I propose to make and insist upon, is that all applications for papers shall be made to the clerk of the court and that he shall make them out. The present plan is to have the papers made out at the headquarters of the different political parties. Mistakes are frequently found upon them which require considerable time to rectify, which would not be necessary if proper care were observed in drawing them up. It oftentimes happens that we have to send out for the person that made out the papers to explain matters which, of course, takes time. Again, when papers are drawn up by parties politically interested it is sometimes evident that the candidate has been coached as to the answers he is to make, and he forgets his instructions and gets cornered. There was a case last week when a candidate appeared for his final papers and the first question I asked him was how long he had been in the state. He answered that he came from Connecticut last June. I dismissed him at once as the law requires that he must be in the state a year. He demurred and wanted to know where he should go to be naturalized. I told him that I didn't see as he could be naturalized any where under the circumstances, unless he he could find a court that had jurisdiction, but that I did not have any. Now, whoever was instrumental in sending that man into the court must have known that he was not eligible, and it is barely possible that that he had forgottten to answer the questions he had received.

"Again I believe there are many persons naturalized who would be disqualified if their characters were known. If a man has he is not eligible, and the city clerk is required to post a list of applicants in order that their antecedents may be looked up but how many cases were ever investigated.

"The fact is that the whole matter has been too loosely conducted and it will continue to be so as long as the business is engineered by political parties. In the eagerness to make voters there is too much of an inducement to use fraud and deception. If a person has no conscience in the matter and has no regard for his oath there is no reason he cannot become a voter before he has been in this country a week. I don't propose to allow any case of illegal naturalization to pass this court if I know it, and if any safeguards can be legally applied I propose to apply them if possible."

A Point on Winter Cloaks.

When a woman goes to a store for Hair Pins she does not care to see a great assortment for hair pins are but hair pins. But when she wants a cloak it is different. She wants the largest possible assortment to choose from. There is some one in a large lot that suits her better than all the rest and that one garment is the one she wants. It follows that a woman can make the best choice where the largest variety and latest designs are shown and that is at the Beaver Cloak Co.'s new store in the P. O. block. Ladies, misses', and children's garments of all kinds and prices way down.

DEATHS.

Mary McLaughlin, aged 30 years, died Tuesday, at her home, 23 Charles street.

Ada A., aged 5 years, child of Charles E. and Eva B. Thompson, died yesterday at their home, on Jenness street.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cahill will be pained to hear of the death of their six-year-old son, George Henry Cahill, from inflammation of the bowels, after an illness of only three days. The little fellow passed away at 10 o'clock last night, and a ray of sunshine has gone out forever. Their affliction is very sad indeed, and it seems as if they were called upon to bear more than their share of life's burdens as Mr. Cahill is confined to his bed from rheumatism. The funeral will be announced later.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

LAWTON'S

Record Impugned by the Boston Herald.

THE LOWELL CITIZEN AGAIN SEVERELY CASTIGATED.

Candidate Lawton's Advocacy of Corporations Interests Exposed.

It is about time for the city committee to begin to instruct voters upon marking their ballots. The large number of blanks cast at the state election should induce voters to be very cautious in crossing, first, the proper number of candidates, and secondly, in putting the crosses in the proper place.

Mayor Pickman received 6097 votes, Mr. Courtney 6065, a difference of 32 votes only. On the mayoralty vote there were 550 blanks, viz: ballots which were not properly marked or which were not marked at all.

Some voters think they will make matters sure by writing their names upon the ballots, while others try to be as accommodating as possible by giving each candidate a vote. It is not an uncommon occurrence for voters to promise to vote for opposing candidates, and it may be in an honest endeavor to keep their word that they put two many crosses on their ballots. This must be avoided, for a ballot so marked is always thrown out and the good intentions of the voter go for naught. The safe and proper way to vote is to mark one cross opposite the name of each democratic candidate. Such a ballot will help elect John E. Russell, James B. Carroll, Peter J. Brady, William A Reade and all the other democratic nominees.

Every democrat and every republican who wants to hear the issues of the campaign fairly discussed, who wants to hear republican fallacies exposed and republican charges against the democracy refuted should go to the big rally in Huntington hall tonight. There will Governor Russell and Congressman McKettrick expound democratic principles and show the true causes of the financial stringency and the business depression.

The Citizen has for some time been muttering its disapproval of the anti-stock watering bills which were rejected by the Massachusetts senate before its adjournment last summer probably with the intention of explaining away or justifying Mr. Lawton's opposition to those same measures. After stating that the Citizen's words are as strong as if written by a corporation attorney, the Herald referring to this question says.

"The bills in question that our contemporary and Senator Lawton condemn were in accordance with the petitions of the state board of trade of Massachusetts and the associated board of trade of Boston. They were drawn up and submitted to some of the ablest legal authorities in the commonwealth, men who had had long and varied experience with railroad law, by the side of whom no disinterested authority that our Lowell contemporary can name could hold a candle. Men experienced in railroad administration so far as this related to state supervision had been carefully over them and had corrected the defects that might exist in them. Furthermore, it may be added that the only opposition to them before the committees, and so far as could be seen in the legislature itself, were the counsel of the interested corporations.

But we are told that the republican platform condemned these measures, instead of approving of them, as wrong in principle, impossible in practice and unworthy of the subject. It would be interesting to know if this is the republican candidate's view of the question. This is, no doubt, Senator Lawton's view, and he, as we have said, assisted in drafting the platform, and perhaps drew this particular plank."

This clinches the last nail in Lawton's political coffin. He is beyond question the most out and out advocate of corporation interests in this part of the state. When he shall have been defeated by Mr. Brady, Mr. Lawton will have no trouble in securing a position as corporation counsel.

The Boston Herald has this to say of the joint debate between Williams and Walker: "Mr. George F. Williams again vindicated his reputation as a keen and eloquent debater in his encounter with Mr. Walker at Worcester. There seems to have been little difference of opinion in the vast audience, composed of both republicans and democrats, as to the merits of the joint debate. The facts as well as the logic were all on the side of the young man from Dedham. Besides, he kept his temper, which is where he surpassed Mr. Walker again.

Tonight Governor Russell will commence speaking in Huntington hall at 7.45 o'clock in order to get to Lawrence in time to address a rally there. The hall will be densely crowded with men anxious to hear his views on the leading campaign issues.

Marcellus Fletcher will soon have the sample ballots on hand and will distribute them among those who may desire to have them. Every voter should know how to mark a ballot.

Already there is a kick among the anti-saloon league over that circular issued by Rev. Hugh Montgomery in favor of the republican ticket. Here is the objection of a prominent member: This league was organized as a non-partisan church institution. Here is one of its fundamental principles, as given in the constitution:

"Reserving the right to entertain individually our political preferences, we hold ourselves free from the denomination of the liquor power in our exercise of the elective franchise."

A circular issued by the league at the time of its organization says: "* * *

It is proposed to unite in this way in opposition to the saloon all voters of the commonwealth of whatever political party who can be reached through the instrumentality of the churches."

It is only just to say that the men whose names are published above this appeal are not responsible for this prostitution of the organization to the support of a platform and candidates which "ring hollow" on the temperance question. They were not consulted about the publication of their names.

NEW YORK DRUMMER

WHO PULLED A REVOLVER AND KNIFE YESTERDAY.

Tells Judge Hadley That He is a Very Nice Boy, and Chief Howard That He Knows Nothing About What He Don't Know.

Albion Dyke, the man who was arrested on Central street yesterday afternoon while sporting a revolver and knife, and who was supposed to be a crank was arraigned in court today on a charge of assault and battery on John O'Gorman. He pleaded not guilty.

John O'Gorman took the stand and testified that he was standing near the corner of Central and Middlesex streets, engaged in conversation with a friend, when Dyke, whom he had never seen before, approached him and drawing a knife said: "I'll rip you up with this." Then he drew a revolver and said: "I can blow you up with this." Witness became frightened and started off.

Officer Walsh testified to seeing the two men talking but did not know what was the matter. He was standing on the opposite side of the street when a man came across and told him what had happened. He went after Dyke, and when he arrested him he found a revolver, a box of cartridges and a knife in his pocket.

When Judge Hadley inquired of Dyke if he had any question he desired to ask the officer, he replied: "All I have to say is that he is a gentleman."

Dyke then said he bought the pistol for a friend. He told the court he was a drummer, and traveling men generally carry such things for protection.

In answer to a question by the chief he said: "I don't know any more about anything this man says than you know anything about something you don't know anything about."

Again he said to the chief: "The world-wide knows me, and I am a pretty nice boy." The court found Dyke guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $6 for assault and battery and $3 for drunkenness. Dyke paid with the remark that "he never spent so much money foolishly."

The boy was taken to St. John's hospital where the surgeons after consultation decided that amputation was necessary.

GEORGE OTIS

Imposes Upon the Credulity of a Girl.

BOTH ARE NOW MISSING FROM SPRINGFIELD.

He Was Married But Yet Deceived the Girl.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 2.—George H. Otis, a grocer at 415 Central street, has been missing since Monday night, and Miss Lena Kock, a handsome 18-year-old girl, who resided with her parents at 102 Wilcox street, has been missing since the same night, and her family, the police and Otis family are of the opinion that the couple have eloped, and are now either in New York or Boston.

A warrant has been issued for Otis' arrest on the charge of abduction. Otis has a wife and two children, and is about 30 years of age. According to Mrs. Kock and the sister of the missing girl, Otis has been paying attention to Lena for a year. He has called at the house two or three times a week, and gave his name as G. O. Young, and claimed to be a single man. He had not, as far as they know, proposed to the girl, but it was tacitly understood that they were the same as engaged.

Otis had presented Lena with many presents, and accompanied her to public places of entertainment. Last Monday Otis called at Miss Kock's and stayed a short time. After he had gone Lena said she was going out for a few moments, and left home. She did not return, and, inquiry being made at Mr. Otis' store, it was found that no such person as G. O. Young was there, and that Otis had not been there since the previous day.

Since Monday night Mrs. Kock, who is alone, her husband being away, and unconscious of the scandal, has gone from house to house almost frantic in her search for her daughter. Yesterday she gave the matter to the police.

A short time since there was a fire in Otis' store, and it is supposed that the insurance money and the proceeds of a fire sale have furnished the funds for his trip.

CASH BALANCE OF $2,500,000.

World's Fair Stockholders Lost Nothing by Their Investment.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The official figures of paid admissions to the fair up to the closing day are 21,469,441. Adding the number admitted on passes the total is 27,739,041. It is considered that these figures beat the record made at Paris. The total receipts of the Paris exposition were $8,300,000. The returns are not all yet in for the World's Columbian exposition, but they will not fall short of $14,000,000.

All obligations have been met and there is a cash balance on hand of $2,500,000. The gate receipts and the salvage from now on, it is expected, will pay the current expenses until the end, so that the stockholders, who have holdings representing $5,000,000, upon which they scarcely expected to realize anything, were paid 50 cents on $1.

Most of them, however, will contribute their stock to the Columbian museum. It is expected that $500,000 worth of this stock will be so donated, and with the gift of the museum by Marshall Field, the $100,000 by George M. Pullman and between $500,000 and $1,000,000 that is expected from others, will give the museum a working capital of over $3,000,000.

Free Booze.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Nov. 2.—Last night under the impulse of an A. P. A. crusade, this city voted no license. It was a red letter day for the old soakers and they reveled in the treat. Drunkenness and free fights were prevalent.

NATURALIZATION.

JUDGE HADLEY OPPOSED TO HOLDING NIGHT SESSIONS.

He Gives Advice to the Managers of Political Parties—They Are Not to Wait Till Election Day Nor to Bring in Ineligible Parties.

The following opinion from Judge Hadley upon the manner and means of naturalizing foreign born residents in the police court, is given by the Mail and being of special importance because of the judge expressing his intention to demand more careful preparation of candidates, is well worth perusal:

"I should like to have it publicly announced," said he, "that we have held the last evening session for naturalization in the Lowell police court. With the duty which now devolves upon the officers of the court it is too much to ask us, after the arduous duty of the day is over, to come to the court room and sit for two hours or more in an atmosphere vitiated by a crowd that is none too tidy at the best, and decide hurriedly upon papers that should receive deliberate consideration. It requires the closest attention to see that everything is properly prepared, but if we should take the time necessary to do strict justice in every case there would be at the delay. I propose hereafter to hold special sessions for naturalization on Saturday afternoons, but of course we shall be prepared to attend to all such cases during the regular sessions of the court.

"I am aware that this plan may not be favorably received by the engineers of either political party, about election time when they go through the city with a drag net and gather in a drove of candidates to be put through before election day comes. But I wish to have it distinctly understood that the court does not sit for this purpose, simply to gain voters; our purpose is to make citizens. That is what they are naturalized for, and not simply to issue the final papers on time to allow the newly-pledged citizens to go before the board of registrars on the last day of their session.

"If this were the only time that the candidates could legally present themselves there would be some excuse for it. There may be some instances where such is the case, but they are very few.

"What I mean is this: The law requires that every person who desires to become a citizen shall first file an application, stating when he arrived in the country, which shall be sworn to by two witnesses. The law also requires that he shall have been in the country five years before he takes out his final papers, but he cannot take them out until two years from the time he makes the application. If a person makes an application upon first arriving in this country he must wait five years before the final papers are taken out, but if he resides here three years and then makes the application he can take out the final papers when the two years have expired. He is not required to do so, by law, immediately upon the expiration of the two years he may do it any time afterwards. That time may have expired six months ago, but the candidate takes no interest in the matter in most cases, until just before election, when they are "brad-awled" by the party leaders and come in droves at a night session.

"As I have said before our object in naturalization is to make citizens and not voters particularly.

We Don't Run the Police Court

in the interest of any party and we don't propose to have any politics in our administration of affairs if we know it. If foreigners desire to become citizens they should be interested enough to call for their final papers earlier in the season and not wait to be whipped in by those who take no interest in them except to qualify them as voters in time for election. It is not in keeping with the dignity of any court of justice to be a party to any such political engineering and I propose to stop it.

"I don't wish to be understood as being peculiar in this respect. We have discussed this subject at meetings of the municipal justices and we are all agreed the duty imposed upon us is abused

Another radical change that I propose to make and insist upon, is that all applications for papers shall be made to the clerk of the court and that he shall make them out. The present plan is to have the papers made out at the headquarters of the different political parties. Mistakes are frequently found upon them which require considerable time to rectify, which would not be necessary if proper care were observed in drawing them up. It oftentimes happens that we have to send out for the person that made out the papers to explain matters which, of course, takes time. Again, when papers are drawn up by parties politically interested it is sometimes evident that the candidate has been coached as to the answers he is to make, and he forgets his instructions and gets cornered. There was a case last week when a candidate appeared for his final papers and the first question I asked him was how long he had been in the state. He answered that he came from Connecticut last June. I dismissed him at once as the law requires that he must be in the state a year. He demurred and wanted to know where he should go to be naturalized. I told him that I didn't see as he could be naturalized any where under the circumstances, unless he could find a court that had jurisdiction, but that I did not have any. Now, whoever was instrumental in sending that man into the court must have known that he was not eligible, and it is barely possible that that he had forgotten to answer the questions he had received.

"Again I believe there are many persons naturalized who would be disqualified if their characters were known. If a man has he is not eligible, and the city clerk is required to post a list of applicants in order that their antecedents may be looked up but how many cases were ever investigated.

"The fact is that the whole matter has been too loosely conducted and it will continue to be so as long as the business is engineered by political parties. In the eagerness to make voters there is too much of an inducement to use fraud and deception. If a person has no conscience in the matter and has no regard for his oath there is no reason he cannot become a voter before he has been in this country a week. I don't propose to allow any case of illegal naturalization to pass this court if I know it, and if any safeguards can be legally applied I propose to apply them if possible."

Gay and Festive Masher.

HAVERHILL, Nov. 2. The attractiveness of the young women of Haverhill proved too much for Frank Bedell of Lawrence. For a few hours last night he amused himself by attempting to scrape acquaintance with some of Haverhill's fair daughters, but one of the young women complained of his advances, and patrolman Smith sent him down to the station, where his tall hat, light coat and cane now hang on a nail. Bedell was tried today.

REPEAL BILL

Promptly Passed in the National House.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS NONPLUSSED BY SPEAKER CRISP'S TACT.

The Bill Has Been Signed by President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Silver purchases by the government closed last evening. The purpose for which Mr. Cleveland called congress in extraordinary session was accomplished at 4:25 yesterday afternoon, when he affixed his signature to the bill to repeal unconditionally the purchase clause of the Sherman law. The struggle in the house was short. Only 27 men could be rallied for the last stand by the silver leaders, Messrs. Bland and Bryan.

Mr. Bland and his colleagues, knowing that further opposition was futile, preferred to sacrifice the opportunity for a few hours' debate offered by Mr. Wilson in order to force the majority to bring in the cloture and concur in the senate amendment by duress. But even in this they failed.

Their small following might have succeeded had they been led by experienced and skilful parliamentary tacticians. Neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Snodgrass, his lieutenant, is well versed in parliamentary procedure, and when thrown off their guard by a momentary distraction, they exposed their flank by failing to follow one filibustering motion with another.

Speaker Crisp overwhelmed them by putting the pending motion to order the previous question. It was carried with a roar. The filibusterers had been caught napping, and nothing remained for them to do except to submit. For 30 minutes, under the rule, followed the rattle of oratory amid the greatest confusion and excitement. At its conclusion the vote was taken on Mr. Bland's free coinage substitute. The majority was 73 against it.

Then came the final vote on concurring in the senate amendments. The vote stood 193 for concurrence and 94 against. When the original bill passed the house Aug. 28 the vote was 201 to 100, so that although the total vote yesterday was smaller the proportion was practically the same.

The Climax.

The final vote was taken at 2:50 p. m. The bill was engrossed immediately, and in 20 minutes, at 3:10, the formal announcement was made to the senate that its amendment had been agreed to by the house. The bill was hurriedly enrolled by Chairman Pearson of the committee on enrolled bills, and at 3:30 was presented to Speaker Crisp for his signature.

A fleet-footed messenger carried it to the senate, where it was signed two minutes later by Vice President Stevenson. Chairman Pierson, with the bill under his arm, entered a carriage waiting for him on the plaza in front of the Capitol and drove rapidly to the White House.

The president had been kept duly advised of the progress of events. Indeed, he manifested so much interest in the vote in the house that at his request a duplicate of the names of those who had voted for or against the concurrence was made soon after the rollcall was completed, and this list was lying on his desk when Mr. Pearson arrived with the bill. Secretary Carlisle, Attorney General Olney and Private Secretary Thurber were present.

After felicitating with each other for a few moments over the victory that had been achieved, the president took up the engrossed copy of the bill and read it aloud. Then picking up a quill pen he affixed his autograph at 4:25. And thus 85 days 6 hours and 25 minutes after the extraordinary session convened the remedy for the financial distress, which Mr. Cleveland demanded in his message, was applied.

The analysis of the vote shows that 124 Democrats, 68 Republicans and one Populist, Caunon of California, voted for concurrence, and 70 Democrats, 15 Republicans and nine Populists against the motion. The following members voted for the Bland free coinage substitute and also for concurrence:

EPIDEMIC OF GLANDERS

Causing Alarm Among Owners of Horses at Concord, N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 2.—Glanders in a bad form have appeared among horses here. The first case developed in the stables of the state asylum for insane, on Monday last, and the disease quickly spread, infecting several animals that occupied neighboring stalls.

A veterinary was summoned, who, in turn, called State Cattle Commissioner Bachelder. The latter inoculated the horses with malein, the late European discovery, and established the fact that five of the seven sick animals had glanders of a bad type. These he ordered killed, and the stables, which were thoroughly disinfected, will not again be used.

Another case appeared yesterday in a grocer's horse, which has been drinking daily at a public fountain on one of the principal street corners. This horse was also killed, but it is feared that the infection may have been communicated to many valuable horses through the drinking fountain.

A LIFE OF CRIME

Ended in a Summary Manner by a Mob of Virginians.

RICHMOND, Nov. 2.—Notorious Abe Redmond, one of the most desperate men in Virginia, came to his death in Charlotte county at the hands of a mob. He was arrested day before yesterday by an officer and a dozen assistants. A few days ago he was looking for a negro whom he wanted to kill. He got the wrong one, but did not let him go until he had beaten him nearly to death.

About 11 o'clock at night two of his guards were asleep. The door was broken in with a crash, and guards and prisoners were covered with pistols. Without a word the prisoner was taken out. The body was found hanging from a tree. Redmond's life was full of crime.

She Will Marry Yung Kwai.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 2.—A sensation has been caused here by the marriage engagement of Miss May Burnham, daughter of Mrs. Florence I. W. Burnham, to Yung Kwai, a young member of the Chinese legation in New York. Yung Kwai attended the high school here for several years, and then went to Yale university, of which he is a graduate.

Ingalls' Opinion.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 2.—Ex-Senator Ingalls lectured here last night to several thousand people. In an interview he said the poor times is not the outcome of the silver discussion. The need of money is the cause. The people want both gold and silver and plenty of it. He did not think Cleveland would allow any radical changes in the tariff.

Philadelphia Will Miss Him.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Daniel Dawson died in this city of hemorrhage of the stomach. Mr. Dawson was one of the best known citizens of Philadelphia and an all-round athlete. He was also famous as a poet, a gourmet and a society man. As a boxer he had few equals in amateur ranks. He was 35 years old and unmarried.

Roasted Alive.

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 2.—Mrs. John F. Brown went to the house of A. E. Rogers for a pail of water and returning found her 3-year-old girl out in the yard face down, its clothing all burned off. The child only lived 15 minutes. It is supposed the child's clothing caught fire from the stove in the house and that she ran out doors in an attempt to extinguish the flames.

Highwaymen In Maine.

CAMDEN, Me., Nov. 2.—A. B. Ward of Gilbertsville, Mass., and E. E. Hosmer of Camden were held up by two men in the woods between Camden and Rockport and ordered to give up their money or lives. It was so dark they could not see the men, and while waiting an electric car light came around a bend in the road, when the would-be robbers fled.

Phinney's Trial Begun.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—Edward J. Phinney, who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Edward M. Shine, Aug. 19, was put on trial yesterday in the superior criminal court. The defendant pleaded not guilty.

For Governor:

For Lieut.-Governor:

JAMES B. CARROLL.

For Senator:

PETER J. BRADY.

THE WORLD'S Fair closed like a funeral service, but it was nevertheless an unparalled success.

THE APPLICANTS for relief at the pauper department are numerous and many of them are undeserving. The same may be said of many who apply for employment at the office of the superintendent of streets.

LYNN is agitating against the distribution of hand bills on the streets. That is right, pass and ordinance against it, as did Lowell. It is a common nuisance to have a fakir stick circulars often of the nastiest character into the hands, pockets and clothing of passers by. No decent city would tolerate such an abuse.

IT WOULD have been well for Mr. Lawton, the senatorial candidate, if he had paid the Citizen for keeping silent. He may be called upon to settle for what it had to say of him although it brought upon his head the wrath of the Boston Herald. His labor record is notable as being uniformly opposed to labor measures.

MR. GREENHALGE'S criticism of Gov. Russell for appointing the successor to David Hall Rice, is far fetched. He says the constitution says the governor "may" appoint, not "shall" appoint. The "may" leaves it entirely optional with the governor, and if he has chosen to fill a temporary vacancy in the executive council he has a perfect right to do so.

WILLIAM A. READE of Lowell should receive a majority of 2500 votes in this city. It is for the best interests of this city to elect him in order to displace Commissioner Read and break the county ring which sells out the interests of the county to corporations, to private individuals, to their personal friends and political supporters. Mr. Reade would make an incorruptible official and one who could neither be bribed nor bought.

THE REV. Hugh Montgomery has issued a circular giving his alleged reasons as to why he votes with the republican party in preference to any other. He says he favors the republican party because it has without flinching and without compromise pledged hostility to the liquor traffic. It is but a short time since prohibitionists were assailing the republican party for adopting a hypocritical policy on this question and for claiming to oppose the saloon while at the same time openly supporting it. But Mr. Montgomery is not a prohibitionist now. We know not whether he is a teetotaler, but he says he is with the republican party. So much the worse for the party. Such a disturber will alienate five votes for every one he will bring to the party. He is now a member of the party that keeps the prohibitionists from getting a place on the state ticket.

THE JOINT DEBATE.

Shirtsleeves Walker was vanquished in the joint debate with Hon. George Fred Williams in Worcester on Tuesday night. Walker's groundless assertions were exposed and the responsibility for the financial stringency and the business depression saddled firmly upon the republican party. Mr. Williams read a letter written by Mr. Cleveland in 1885 predicting the financial stringency if the hoarding of silver and the depletion of gold were not checked. The stringency, the business depression came as predicted and the decision of congress to abandon the purchase of silver is the remedy laid down by Cleveland eight years ago. This fell like a thunderbolt on Mr. Walker and he was utterly confounded, while the crowd cheered for Williams.

REPEAL WILL RESTORE CONFIDENCE.

Now that repeal has been passed confidence will return in due time despite the statements of the calamity howlers. It will be their policy to cast doubt upon this statement and to do all that in them lies to neutralize the effect of repeal until after election day.

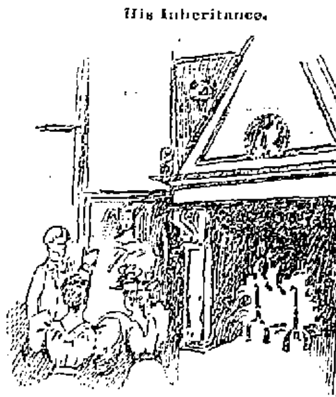

The manufacturers can keep their mills closed or else running on short time as a matter of party accommodation, and the manipulators of the stock market can offset any improvement that may appear within the coming week. With these precautions the republican stump speakers will tell the people that repeal has brought no change, that the real cause of the business depression is distrust as to the new tariff arrangements.

It is obvious that the effect of any such measure cannot be instantaneous, that some time will be required to bring about a change for the better, and it is still as clear that such a change will follow as a direct result of the repeal bill. The drain of gold from the treasury will be stopped, the piling up of silver is at an end, and confidence in the government credit will soon be fully restored.

The democratic administration has been assailed for not fulfilling its pledges. The repeal bill has been passed as the first and most urgent thing promised. It was said some time ago that the democratic party did not mean to fulfil its pledges, but that statement has been falsified in one instance at least. It is now stated by republicans that repeal will not bring a change for the better in industrial circles. That too will soon be proved false.

An Adjustable Dream.

An Irish earl and his lady were riding out one morning, and meeting one of their tenantry gave her a kindly greeting.

"And sure I had a drame about yer honor last night sending me a pound of tobaccy and yer leddyship a pound of tay, and it's joyful I am to tell ye this morning," said the accustomed beneficiary.

"But, my good woman," replied the earl, "dreams go by the contrary."

"Indade, then, yer honor is to send the tay and her ladyship the tobaccy," was the quick witted reply.—New York Ledger.

IT WAS NO USE.

And Realizing It Was Hopeless He Finally Succumbed.

The cable car was going at full speed. It is the manner of this sort of vehicle that it does not gain acceleration gradually after starting, but goes on the jump at the end of the first dozen feet.

At this critical moment a young colored man dashed across the street and swung himself upon the grip car. Just at the same instant a shriek was heard, and a comely woman of African descent and robust physique made a sprint after the traction train. Though the latter was by this time going at about 20 miles an hour, she made a grab at the rail on the last platform and became a passenger by sheer force of muscle and athletic dexterity.

It did not take her half a minute to make her way forward to the grip car and take the seat beside the young colored man, who was much astonished to see her. Said he:

"Whar you gwine?"

"Gwine whar I gwine," she replied loftily and with an air of assumed indifference.

"Whar's dat?"

"Wid you."

"Whuffo?"

"Just 'cause."

"'Cause why?"

"'Cause I feel like."

"Well, I don't want you follerin me."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar Thompson, I'm gwine to keep my eyes on you."

"I ain't gwine to have it," protested the colored man. "You git right offen dis car, now I tell you."

"Pooh!" responded the young woman contemptuously.

"You hear what I say!"

"Yeppy."

"Ain't you gwine to mind?"

"Not if dis lady knows herself."

"You gotter."

"I won't."

The young man looked disgusted. After spending a minute or two in reflection, an idea struck him, and he said triumphantly:

"You cain't ride, 'cause you ain't got no money."

"You kin pay my fare."

"I won't do it."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar, you'ze a low down man. If I'd knowed you 'fore I married you as I do now, you'd have had to git some other lady fer a wife."

"Stop yer foolishness an git off de car," he replied sullenly.

"I ain't a-gwine to."

"Then you'll git put off."

Just then the conductor came forward to take up the fares in the grip car. The colored man refused to pay for the woman, who addressed an eloquent appeal to the knight of the bell punch.

"This yere is my husband," she said. "I'se got a s'picion dat he's got a meetin on hand wif anudder woman. He got on de car to git rid of me, and I follered to keep an eye on him. I s'pose you're a genman, and you wouldn't chuck a lady off."

The conductor had a heart, as was evident when he replied:

"Stay on. I'll pay your fare myself."

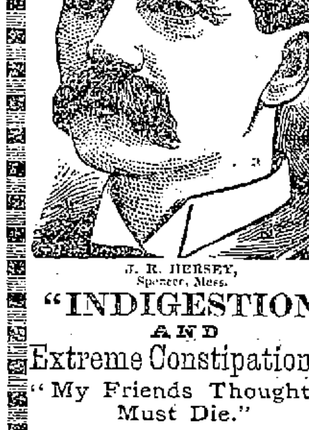

This happy turn of events caused the young woman to giggle consummately. The man, on the other hand, expressed his disgust with vague and semiarticulate mutterings. All of this had happened while the car was going three blocks.

Just as the cable train was traveling at its most rapid gait between two corners, the recalcitrant husband jumped to his feet without warning and leaped off the car. Evidently he supposed that his wife would not dare to imitate the maneuver, but he reckoned without his host. With a flying bound she sprang off and after him. In 20 seconds she had caught him and grabbed him by the arm.

"Now, you fool nigger," she exclaimed, "just come straight home wid me."

"I'm a-comin," rejoined the man sulkily, evidently recognizing the situation as hopeless from his point of view. And the two walked away arm in arm.—Washington Post.

"I AM NOW A CURED MAN."

The following wonderful statement was sent us by C. B. Carpenter, Druggist, 140 Main St., Spencer, Mass.

DANA SARSAPARILLA CO.:

GENTS:—Some ten years ago I commenced to fail. INDIGESTION and EXTREME CONSTIPATION caused me to lose flesh very fast. I employed Physicians and tried Sarsaparillas, but continued to grow worse. I had a continuous headache, my skin turned yellow, and my friends thought I must die. My strength left me and courage also. This was my condition last February when I commenced to take

DANA'S SARSAPARILLA

Before the first bottle was gone, there was a great improvement. My friends wanted to know what caused such a change in me. I replied "DANA'S SARSAPARILLA." I am now taking my third bottle and consider myself at the age of 50, after Doctors had failed, a CURED MAN.

Yours respectfully, J. R. HERSEY.

To All Whom It May Concern.

There are undoubtedly many people who feel at some time or another unwell, not really sick but very indisposed. Now, what such persons need at such times, is not medicine, nor high-priced prescriptions, but what is needed is some gentle, but sure stimulant, something to assist and at the same time enrich the blood; nature will do the rest. And the best medical authorities agree there is nothing better than pure wine.

MATABLES

At Fort Victoria Suffer An Overwhelming Defeat.

KING LOBENGULA MADE A HASTY RETREAT.

Three Thousand of His Men Killed and Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to The Daily News from Fort Victoria says that the Matabeles have been routed, and that the intense anxiety, which has so long existed, is now relieved. All the advancing columns held a share in the skirmishing on the march, which was necessarily slow. On Friday the Matabele impis opened a determined attack on the command of Forbes.

LOBENGULA.

The fight was vigorously sustained, but the Matabeles could make no impression on the white forces, who held a position in the Laager. The Matabeles were mowed down on all sides and finally were compelled to retire with heavy loss. Fresh impis resumed the attack next day, Major Forbes and the combined columns being then within a few miles of Buluwayo. The blacks fought with bravery, as was expected of them, but in face of the machine guns and unerring rifles of the whites they could never get within striking distance.

Flight of the Matabeles.

Finally the attack weakened and the Matabeles showed signs that they were about to retreat. Then Major Forbes gave the order to charge. The Maxim guns were placed upon the dense masses of natives, and the whites instantly afterward rushed upon the wavering warriors. The Imbizo regiment attempted to stand their ground, but over half of them were shot down and the remainder fled back to Buluwayo.

It may be said that this practically was the decisive battle of the campaign. King Lobengula commanded the Matabeles in person. He directed the movements of his head men, and he retreated to Buluwayo after the battle. The white forces decided to make a forward movement at once before the blacks could have time to rally. The combined columns opened the attack upon Buluwayo, but there was little fight left in the Matabeles, and they fled in a northwesterly direction, King Lobengula with them. A flying column was at once made up to pursue and harass them, although it is believed that the Matabeles have been thoroughly beaten and cowed and that Lobengula's power is gone.

The loss to the Chartered company's forces was only slight, and was mainly confined to the column commanded by Major Forbes. The Matabele loss is reported to exceed 30,000 killed and wounded. The imperial forces under Colonel Adams reached Buluwayo yesterday from the occupation by the settlers, hoping the Matabeles could be driven beyond Zambesi before the rainy season sets in, so as to avoid further fighting in the spring.

A dispatch to The Times from Fort Charter says that it is reported that Lobengula has gone to the Mateppo hills with the remainder of his impis. If this be true, he will be completely trapped. It is more likely, however, that he has retreated toward the Zambesi. It is possible that the remainder of the impi may kill Lobengula. Administrator Jameson will remain at Buluwayo as administrator.

Germans Are Worried.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The Cologne Gazette has received a dispatch from Cape Town giving alarming reports of the condition of affairs in German Southwest Africa. It is stated that Chief Witbooi and his followers have had a quarrel with the colonial troops near Horkanis, and that several Germans, including Lieutenant Francois, have been killed and the German settlements burned. The reports have not been confirmed.

A Fight In the Soudan.

TRIPOLI, Nov. 2.—There has been heavy fighting in the Soudan. Rabak, the ex-slave of Zobeir Pasha, recently revolted against the Sultan of Wedday, but was defeated. He rallied his forces and made fierce war upon the people of Bornou, and captured several towns about Lake Chad. Rabak has burned and pillaged Boghirmi, the capital, and other towns. The inhabitants have fled to Bornou, to which territory the sultan has dispatched 40,000 soldiers to co-operate with the 25,000 sent by the Sultan of Wedday to attack Lugun, which place Rabak has occupied. The warfare now in progress has caused all the caravan routes to be closed.

Asphyxiated.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—Colonel Gilbert S. Jennings, U. S. A., retired, died last night, aged 76. He was found in his bed in an unconscious condition, the result of inhaling gas. Whether he blew the light out or whether in turning it off he accidentally reopened the stopper is unknown.

The Melilla Engagement.

MADRID, Nov. 2.—There has been no actual fighting at Melilla since Monday. The loss to the Spaniards from the recent engagement was 4 officers and 18 men killed and 15 officers and 70 men wounded.

ARMS FOR BRAZIL.

Belief That Another Very Large Shipment Has Been Made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Antonio de Castilho, consul general in New York for President Peixoto's government, sailed on the steamer Wordsworth yesterday afternoon for Pernambuco. Although De Castilho is in poor health, it is considered significant that he should leave his post these critical times in his country. Men acquainted with Brazilian affairs gave it as their opinion that De Castilho is going to Brazil with regard to the purchase of ships for a navy.

His familiarity with maritime affairs will enable him to tell President Peixoto the exact strength of the vessels which Flint & Co. have purchased and expect to purchase. It is said that a large shipment of arms for the Brazilian army was made yesterday. The story was that the arms were loaded on a sailing vessel, which was to be overtaken by a steamer, and the arms transferred at sea.

The brig Reindeer cleared for San Jose Do Norte, a Brazilian port, ostensibly loaded with 250 tons of coal, and the indications pointed to her as the craft that carried the arms.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—The Brazilian government has purchased through Charles E. Flint & Co. the magnificent steamer Britannia of the North Atlantic Steamship company's fleet. The price paid for her was $225,000.

SYNDICATE OF FORGERS

Will Have to Explain Their Misdeeds to Officers of the Law.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Joseph O. Hayes, 18 years old, a messenger employed by Coffin & Stanton, brokers; Henry D. Garrett, alias Loper, 31 years old; James D. Buchanan, 47 years old; "Manufacturer" John T. Brush, 53 years old, and Sedlow W. Crow, better known as Dr. C. W. Selden, 57 years old, were indicted by the grand jury and remanded by Judge Martine to the Tombs.

They are charged with the planning and successful carrying out of a forging scheme on a large scale. Two checks were forged, drawn on the Manhattan company and certified to by that bank, purporting to be signed by Coffin & Stanton. One of the checks was for $3450 and the other for $5060.60. The checks were deposited in the Garfield National bank on Sept. 28 and Oct. 22, respectively, and had been drawn against until only $7.59 remained. Inspector McLaughlin got wind of the swindle 10 days ago.

PENNOYER'S PLEA.

A Whack at the Silver Question In His Thanksgiving Proclamation.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 2.—Governor Pennoyer yesterday issued the following thanksgiving proclamation:

I do hereby appoint the fourth Thursday of the present month as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings he has bestowed upon this commonwealth during the present year. God has indeed been most beneficent to our state and nation. And yet, unjust and ill-advised congressional legislation, having made gold alone a full legal tender money, has so dwarfed and paralyzed business that the bounties of Providence are now denied to hundreds of thousands of people within the national domain, who not only are without employment, but also without the means of procuring food, raiment or shelter.

While, therefore, the people of Oregon return thanks to God for his goodness, I do most earnestly recommend that they devoutly implore him to dispose the president and congress of the United States to secure restoration of silver as full legal tender money, in accordance with the policy of the fathers of the republic, whereby our industries may be revived, and honest toilers of the land may procure their daily bread, not as alms, but as a reward of their labor.

DOZEN DROWNED.

Electric Street Car Plunges Into a River at Portland, Or.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 2.—An electric car plunged through the open draw of the Madison street bridge yesterday, and sank in the Willamette river. There were 18 or 20 passengers aboard, and all but seven saved their lives by leaping from the car. Five bodies have been recovered.

When the car arrived at the bridge a dense fog enveloped the river and a sharp frost covered the rails with a coating of ice. The draw had just been opened to allow the passage of a steamer, and the usual precautions of closing the gates and displaying the red signal lights had been taken. Owing to the frost, however, the car could not be stopped in the usual distance and crashed through the frail gate and into the river.

The motorman, when he saw he could not stop the car, gave the alarm to the passengers, and as many as had time saved themselves by jumping. The car plunged into the river just in front of the bow of the steamer.

JAMES WHITE'S DEATH.

Circumstances Indicate That Murder Has Been Committed.

WINSTED, Conn., Nov. 2.—Coroner Higgins made discoveries which caused him to order an autopsy on the body of James L. White, who was found dead in his watch box in the yards of the Philadelphia, Reading and New England railroad at Chapinsville Tuesday.

Patrick Finnigan, a section boss, noticed smoke issuing from White's watch box. He investigated and found White dead. The floor was covered with blood, and on the floor were several large stones besmeared with blood.

The dead man's face was frightfully bruised, as was his body. The house was afire, and the flames had also somewhat burned the body. Medical Examiner Birtch of Salisbury was summoned, and, after examining the body, refused to allow it to be buried.

Everything points to murder, but there is no clew upon which to work.

White was 33 years of age and leaves a family in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Firemen Overcome by Smoke.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Fire broke out at midnight in a five-story brick tenement at Third street and the Bowery. Twelve families resided there, and they were all immediately ordered out. Six firemen were overcome by the smoke. Two of them were resuscitated, and the other four taken to Bellevue hospital.

Murderous Robbers.

OUR THEATRES.

OPERA HOUSE—The banner night of the season was that of last evening on the occasion of the Salvini engagement. Standing room was even at a premium. Of Salvini and his company in Dumas' wonderful historical romance only words of highest praise can be given. From beginning to end it was an artistic creation complete in every detail and interpreted by clever people. Salvini as Philippi D'Artagnan was instantly the favorite and his assumption of the young Gascon was a character, such as Dumas' has given the world. Lively and energetic as he was in the use of his faithful "Bobby" he showed his inherited histionic talents whenever the part required it. His reception throughout was most hearty and vigorous. It was likewise a treat again to see William Redmond as Athos, and William Harris as Porthos, both of whom were ideal characters in their parts, and upon them the audience bestowed much attention. Miss Moretti as Anne of Austria, superbly presented the part. Miss Dixon was a charming Constance in both appearance and acting. The character which perhaps received an especial share of attention was that of the great cardinal, Richelieu, and Mr. Johnson, in the part, interpreted the lines with remarkable success. It is not an easy part to play by any means.

Of the remainder of the cast Mr. Lane was not the Buckingham which a reader of history would expect to see on the stage; Miss De Forrest as Lady De Winter was clever as Richelieu's spy, and excellent in her emotional acting. The remainder of the cast was undeniably good although the parts being insignificant in comparison, the people taking them did not shine as resplendent as the stars.

Taking the play as a whole it was a delightful and refreshing evening of legitimate drama, and one that proved that the stage is not entirely pre-empted by comedy and burlesque. The costuming and staging was of the best, and the audience proved the warmest in enthusiasm of the season.

On Saturday evening Charles E. Davies will present Uncle Tom's Cabin, with Peter Jackson as Uncle Tom. Between the acts Jackson and the young Californian Choynski will spar.

While it is undeniably strange that such an original, brilliant and witty a creation as Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" should have scarcely half a score of revivals during the whole history of the English speaking stage, it is doubtless due to the fact that not on an average of once in a generation is an actor produced whose natural gifts and accomplishments fit him to adequately portray the subtle, but quaint and rollicking whimsicalities of either of the two Dromios. Next Monday evening, Stuart Robson will be seen as one of the Dromios.

CHILD LABOR.

A BIG DECREASE IN IT REPORTED BY CHIEF WADE.

Violations Have Been Few and Manufacturers Have Generally Obeyed the Law—Reports of District Officers.

The state factory inspectors have reported to Rufus B. Wade, chief of the district police, that there has been a marked decrease in the number of violations of the child labor law the past year.

While last year there were over 3000 violations reported there has been but 258 children under 14 years of age found at work in factories this year.

In his report made to the legislature last year, Chief Wade stated that in 4339 manufacturing and mercantile establishments in the state, 1650 children between the ages of 13 and 14 years of age were employed.

This statement showed plainly that the child labor law, which provides that all children under 14 years of age shall attend school 20 weeks during the year, had been violated. That something should be done to prevent this violation was the conclusion reached by Chief Wade, and he immediately set to work.

From reports recently submitted to him, the chief reports that there have been 3457 inspections made during the year, and only 258 children under the age limit have been found employed.

For some weeks Mrs. Fanny B. Ames, one of the inspectors, has been investigating, and her reports have been quite satisfactory.

In 1880, when the child labor act was in its youth and not as stringent as at the present time, children under 13 years of age were employed by thousands in all the manufacturing centers, and owing to the condition of affairs which existed then the necessity of making the law what it is today was shown.

Since that time the superintendents of large manufacturing concerns have voluntarily refused to employ children under the age limit, and it is partially owing to this fact that the great decrease is due.

Truant officers, formerly very derelict in their duty, are today materially assisting in the work of reform. Their aid in this work is invaluable, as they possess information which it would be extremely difficult for other officials to secure.

Contrary to the general impression, children at work under the age of limit are not in the main employed in large industrial establishments, but in small shops and stores. In Boston very few children under 14 years are employed, though several years ago hundreds of children under that age were to be found at work in stores.

Mrs. Ames says that in all her experience she has never noted so few children employed, and it is her opinion that in time the law will be but seldom violated. The parents, she says, have awakened to the advantages of education, and they endeavor more strongly than in previous years to keep their children in school.

There were 11,865 minors found employed in the different factories, but only 253 were under the age limit.

RABBIT HUNTING.

How it Should be Done to Avoid Law Breaking.

On the street the past few days have been seen many men burdened with shot guns and accompanied by dogs. Out in Dracut the reports of firearms are frequently heard indicating that there is considerable hunting, even though the Rod and Gun club is not holding its annual shoot.

Of the New England game there is none that is so persistently and systematically pursued illegally as the rabbit. By its peculiar nature it invites the breaking of a state law that was made to protect it. The use of a ferret is prohibited under the statutes, but there is hardly a rabbit hunter who goes into the woods without a "monkey" or "joker," as the ferret is called. And notwithstanding the degree of persistency with which the rabbit is followed by the hunter, pursued by the nimble beagle and routed from its hole by the ferret, it thrives and multiplies beyond comprehension.

The wild rabbit, like the domesticated animal breeds frequently, and the litters are generally very numerous, some being as large as 15, but an ordinary litter contains about seven. The young rabbits breed at an early stage, and the supply is thereby kept above demand. The rabbits breed in the thick brier patches on top of the ground, under the sheltering shade of the scrub oaks, and in their domiciles in the ground.

The youngsters take to living easily, and in a few days will scamper about in a most lively manner. A dry season, such as has been experienced this year, is conducive to a goodly supply, and this accounts for the great number this year, old hunters claiming that never before have they seen them so plentiful in this vicinity.

The rabbits run in the night, and the woods where they make their stamping ground is traversed with paths leading in all directions. Hopping along from clump to clump picking up the nuts and berries of the woods and nibbling at the fresh vegetable growths, they may be seen on any moonlight night. Into the neighboring gardens they will wander, cropping the dainty tidbits from the garden sauce and selecting the most valuable plants to feed upon.

After feeding they will scamper away for a frolic, and then they will be seen circling about in a merry go round chasing each other and reveling in high glee. By the break of day they have worn themselves out and retire to the cover for rest and sleep, only to be driven out by the dogs, which have sprung them from their resting place by running upon them or had taken the fresh trail and unravelled it until they had reached the end and their reward.

The rabbit is of little value as a food product until after the frosts have covered the land for a few nights. Then the flesh becomes a subject for the epicure. Hunted by day, the rabbit offers fine sport, while those who desire the game for the table and market hunt it by night. The rabbits at this season of the year are found near the wet lands, having their burrows on the hill sides surrounding the sloughs and swamps. Leading to the holes are the many intricate paths, and every hole has an outlet, so that the rabbit may make its entrance by one hole and its exit by the other.

In places where there are boulders shattered so that a hole may be dug beneath them, they will burrow in order to insure them against the attack of the spade and bar when run to earth.

The best time of day to follow them is at early morn. Then they have ceased their night's frolic and the trail that they have left is fresh. With a still morning it is an easy matter for the hounds to unravel the trail and rout the rabbit out, but if there is a wind blowing the task becomes difficult.

COMPLAIN OF CUT-DOWN.

Weavers on the Appleton Report a Decrease in Their Wages.

Justice Assembly, K. of L., met last evening and discussed several important matters.

Several new members were initiated and the recent reduction of 25 per cent. in the wages of the fancy weavers on the Crompton looms was taken up.

A delegation of the weavers was present and claimed that none but skilled weavers can run this work and in their opinion the cut down is injust.

It was stated that before the cut-down the weavers on the Appleton were receiving $1.50 per week less than is paid for the same work in North Adams and Fitchburg; and now when this reduction is made, the wages will be about two thirds of those paid in the above mentioned places. The delegates claim that they were somewhat surprised on reading in an account of a recent meeting of the Church league that Rev. Mr. Wright had stated that the Appleton company had decided to run its mills at a loss, in order to furnish employment to its operatives. It does not look as though they intended to lose much, when they have already begun to reduce wages.

It was voted to bring the matter of the reduction before the notice of the national organization.

A communication was received from the secretary of the National organization, K. of L., asking that a boycott be placed upon all matter published by George Munro of New York city.

After some discussion it was voted to declare a boycott and to bring the matter to the attention of the Central Labor Union at its next meeting.

Miss Delia Conners resigned her position as financial secretary owing to removal from the city and Miss Mary Kilkerney was chosen to fill the vacancy. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring secretary.

From Our Five o'clock Edition of Yesterday.

WILD WEST

Was Not in it With His Adventure.

JOHN O'GORMAN HELD UP ON CENTRAL STREET.

Was Afraid of Being "Ripped Up."

Even Lowell is not free from the insane shooting epidemic which has broken out all over the country.

This afternoon about 2.15 o'clock, as John O'Gorman, residing on Salem street, was talking with two friends at the corner of Middlesex and Gorham streets, a lame man, about 50 years of age, well dressed, approached him with a remark.

O'Gorman turned his attention to the new comer who said:

"I'll rip you open with this if you get along" at the same time drawing forth a large jackknife.

"I guess you can," replied O'Gorman in doubt as to whether he was the victim of a joke or that of a lame man's insane notions.

"If I can't do it with that," continued the other, "I blow you open," flourishing a revolver in the face of O'Gormon, who immediately took to his heels and didn't stop until he had met Officers Walsh and J. B. Crowley.

In the meantime the would-be brim blower slipped away towards the depot, and when caught up with by the officers denied that he had a revolver.

The officers searched him and found an empty revolver and unopened box of cartridges, two knifes, a twip clipper and numerous other articles.

At the station house he gave his name as Albion Dyke of New York, a travelling salesman for a gardening concern. He could give no reason for his actions, denying that he pulled out the revolver. He had been drinking and was evidently slightly demented. He was locked up.

A Point on Winter Cloaks.

When a woman goes to a store for Hair Pins she does not care to see a great assortment for hair pins are but hair pins. But when she wants a cloak it is different. She wants the largest possible assortment to choose from. There is some one in a large lot that suits her better than all the rest and that one garment is the one she wants. It follows that a woman can make the best choice where the largest variety and latest designs are shown and that is at the Beaver Cloak Co.'s new store in the P. O. block. Ladies, misses', and children's garments of all kinds and prices way down.

FIREMEN'S PERIL.

OVERCOME BY GAS AND SMOKE IN A TENEMENT HOUSE

They Are Saved by the Bravery of a Brother Firemen Who Also Succumbs in His Rescue.

By Telegraph to THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. Fire broke out at midnight in the cellar of the five story brick tenement house, 19 East 3d st., and the flames made their way through to the ground floor occupied by butcher shops and a laundry.

The upper floors were crowded with sleeping tenants, who were hustled out by the firemen from their beds to the street in scant clothing.

During the course of the fire six firemen were overcome by gas and smoke in the cellar. Four of them were taken to Bellevue hospital.

The two other men revived soon after they were taken out.

Kerrigan, one of the men overcome, performed an act of bravery in bringing down a woman and child from the third floor, who was helpless from fright.

Kerrigan was then ordered to go into the cellar where the other firemen were.

He found them all lying on the floor unconscious from the smoke and gas.

He managed to give the alarm and call for assistance before he himself fell overcome, by the side of his brother firemen.

Three thousand dollars will cover the damage.

It is about time for the city committee to begin to instruct voters upon marking their ballots. The large number of blanks cast at the state election should induce voters to be very cautious in crossing, first, the proper number of candidates, and secondly, in putting the crosses in the proper places.

Mayor Pickman received 6007 votes, Mr. Courtney 6065, a difference of 32 votes only. On the mayoralty vote there were 550 blanks, viz: ballots which were not properly marked or which were not marked at all.

Some voters think they will make matters sure by writing their names upon the ballots, while others try to be as accommodating as possible by giving each candidate a vote. It is not an uncommon occurence for voters to promise to vote for opposing candidates, and it may be in an honest endeavor to keep their word that they put two many crosses on their ballots. This must be avoided, for a ballot so marked is always thrown out and the good intentions of the voter go for naught. The safe and proper way to vote is to mark one cross opposite the name of each democratic candidate. Such a ballot will help elect John E. Russell, James B. Carroll, Peter J. Brady, William A Reade and all the other democratic nominees.

Every democrat and every republican who wants to hear the issues of the campaign fairly discussed, who wants to hear republican fallacies exposed and republican charges against the democracy refuted should go to the big rally in Huntington hall tonight. There will Governor Russell and Congressman McKettrick expound democratic principles and show the true causes of the financial stringency and the business depression.

The Citizen has for some time been muttering its disapproval of the anti-stock watering bills which were rejected by the Massachusetts senate before its adjournment last summer probably with the intention of explaining away or justifying Mr. Lawton's opposition to those same measures. After stating that the Citizen's words are as strong as if written by a corporation attorney, the Herald referring to this question says:

"The bills in question that our contemporary and Senator Lawton condemn were in accordance with the petitions of the state board of trade of Massachusetts and the associated board of trade of Boston. They were drawn up and submitted to some of the ablest legal authorities in the commonwealth, men who had had long and varied experience with railroad law, by the side of whom no disinterested authority that our Lowell contemporary can name could hold a candle. Men experienced in railroad administration so far as this related to state supervision had been carefully over them and had corrected the defects that might exist in them. Furthermore, it may be added that the only opposition to them before the committees, and so far as could be seen in the legislature itself, were the counsel of the interested corporations.

But we are told that the republican platform condemned these measures, instead of approving of them, as wrong in principle, impossible in practice and unworthy of the subject. It would be interesting to know if this is the republican candidate's view of the question. This is, no doubt, Senator Lawton's view, and he, as we have said, assisted in drafting the platform, and perhaps drew this particular plank."

This clinches the last nail in Lawton's political coffin. He is beyond question the most out and out advocate of corporation interests in this part of the state. When he shall have been defeated by Mr. Brady, Mr. Lawton will have no trouble in securing a position as corporation counsel.

The Boston Herald has this to say of the joint debate between Williams and Walker: "Mr. George F. Williams again vindicated his reputation as a keen and eloquent debater in his encounter with Mr. Walker at Worcester. There seems to have been little difference of opinion in the vast audience, composed of both republicans and democrats, as to the merits of the joint debate. The facts as well as the logic were all on the side of the young man from Dedham. Besides, he kept his temper, which is where he surpassed Mr. Walker again.

Tonight Governor Russell will commence speaking in Huntington hall at 7.45 o'clock in order to get to Lawrence in time to address a rally there. The hall will be densely crowded with men anxious to hear his views on the leading campaign issues.

Marcellus Fletcher will soon have the sample ballots on hand and will distribute them among those who may desire to have them. Every voter should know how to mark a ballot.

Already there is a kick among the anti-saloon league over that circular issued by Rev. Hugh Montgomery in favor of the republican ticket. Here is the objection of a prominent member: This league was organized as a non-partisan church institution. Here is one of its fundamental principles, as given in the constitution:

"Reserving the right to entertain individually our political preferences, we hold ourselves free from the denomination of the liquor power in our exercise of the elective franchise."

A circular issued by the league at the time of its organization says: "* * *

It is proposed to unite in this way in opposition to the saloon all voters of the commonwealth of whatever political party who can be reached through the instrumentality of the churches."

It is only just to say that the men whose names are published above this appeal are not responsible for this prostitution of the organization to the support of a platform and candidates which "ring hollow" on the temperance question. They were not consulted about the publication of their names.

NEW YORK DRUMMER

WHO PULLED A REVOLVER AND KNIFE YESTERDAY.

Tells Judge Hadley That He is a Very Nice Boy, and Chief Howard That He Knows Nothing About What He Don't Know.

Albion Dyke, the man who was arrested on Central street yesterday afternoon while sporting a revolver and knife, and who was supposed to be a crank was arraigned in court today on a charge of assault and battery on John O'Gorman. He pleaded not guilty.

John O'Gorman took the stand and testified that he was standing near the corner of Central and Middlesex streets, engaged in conversation with a friend, when Dyke, whom he had never seen before, approached him and drawing a knife said: "I'll rip you up with this." Then he drew a revolver and said: "I can blow you up with this." Witness became frightened and started off.

Officer Walsh testified to seeing the two men talking but did not know what was the matter. He was standing on the opposite side of the street when a man came across and told him what had happened. He went after Dyke, and when he arrested him he found a revolver, a box of cartridges and a knife in his pocket.

When Judge Hadley inquired of Dyke if he had any question he desired to ask the officer, he replied: "All I have to say is that he is a gentleman."

Dyke then said he bought the pistol for a friend. He told the court he was a drummer, and travelling men generally carry such things for protection.

In answer to a question by the chief he said: "I don't know any more about anything this man says than you know anything about something you don't know anything about."

Again he said to the chief: "The world-wide knows me, and I am a pretty nice boy." The court found Dyke guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $6 for assault and battery and $3 for drunkenness. Dyke paid with the remark that "he never spent so much money foolishly."

GEORGE OTIS

Imposes Upon the Credulity of a Girl.

He Was Married But Yet Deceived the Girl.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 2.—George H. Otis, a grocer at 445 Central street, has been missing since Monday night, and Miss Lena Kock, a handsome 18-year-old girl, who resided with her parents at 102 Wilcox street, has been missing since the same night, and her family, the police and Otis family are of the opinion that the couple have eloped, and are now either in New York or Boston.

A warrant has been issued for Otis' arrest on the charge of abduction. Otis has a wife and two children, and is about 30 years of age. According to Mrs. Kock and the sister of the missing girl, Otis has been paying attention to Lena for a year. He has called at the house two or three times a week, and gave his name as G. O. Young, and claimed to be a single man. He had not, as far as they know, proposed to the girl, but it was tacitly understood that they were the same as engaged.

Otis had presented Lena with many presents, and accompanied her to public places of entertainment. Last Monday Otis called at Miss Kock's and stayed a short time. After he had gone Lena said she was going out for a few moments, and left home. She did not return, and, inquiry being made at Mr. Otis' store, it was found that no such person as G. O. Young was there, and that Otis had not been there since the previous day.

Since Monday night Mrs. Kock, who is alone, her husband being away, and unconscious of the scandal, has gone from house to house almost frantic in her search for her daughter. Yesterday she gave the matter to the police.

A short time since there was a fire in Otis' store, and it is supposed that the insurance money and the proceeds of a fire sale have furnished the funds for his trip.

CASH BALANCE OF $2,500,000.

World's Fair Stockholders Lost Nothing by Their Investment.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The official figures of paid admissions to the fair up to the closing day are 21,469,441. Adding the number admitted on passes the total is 27,739,941. It is considered that these figures beat the record made at Paris. The total receipts of the Paris exposition were $8,300,000. The returns are not all yet in for the World's Columbian exposition, but they will not fall short of $14,000,000.

All obligations have been met and there is a cash balance on hand of $2,500,000. The gate receipts and the salvage from now on, it is expected, will pay the current expenses until the end, so that the stockholders, who have holdings representing $5,000,000, upon which they scarcely expected to realize anything, were paid 50 cents on $1.

Most of them, however, will contribute their stock to the Columbian museum. It is expected that $500,000 worth of this stock will be so donated, and with the gift of the museum by Marshall Field, the $100,000 by George M. Pullman and between $500,000 and $1,000,000 that is expected from others, will give the museum a working capital of over $3,000,000.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The funeral of Frank M. Sullivan, took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from his late home on Suffolk street and was very largely attended. The funeral cortege included a long line of carriages containing relatives and friends of the deceased. Among those present was a large delegation of young men, who had known the deceased through life. Many were former schoolmates of St. Patrick's parochial school; others had been associated with him while pursuing an advanced course of studies at Mt. St. Mary's college. Not a few were there who had met on the athletic field. His kindly disposition had endeared him to these and many others. The funeral procession wended its way toward the Catholic cemetery. Upon arrival there services of a simple but impressive character were conducted by Rev. Fr. Gleason of St. Patrick's church. At the conclusion of the services the remains were lowered to the grave, while those about offered a prayer for the repose of his soul.

The top of the grave was completely covered with flowers, prominent among the offerings being a floral gates ajar from the Lowell wine clerks; standing wreath and sickle, from J. B. Cahill, W. F. Fitzgerald, James H. Smith, P. H. McDonough and James Hearn; pillow from Mr. and Mrs. John J. Murray; bunch of chrysanthemums, from John J. Madden; large pillow from the family of the deceased; bunch of white roses from the Misses Smaller; bunch of chrysanthemums from Mrs. J. E. Simpson; basket of flowers from the Misses Fitzgerald; lyre and star, the Misses Sullivan; bunch of roses, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sheehan; bunch of roses, E. B. Quinn and wife.

REPEAL BILL

Promptly Passed in the National House.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS NONPLUSSED BY SPEAKER CRISP'S TACT.

The Bill Has Been Signed by President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Silver purchases by the government closed last evening. The purpose for which Mr. Cleveland called congress in extraordinary session was accomplished at 4:35 yesterday afternoon, when he affixed his signature to the bill to repeal unconditionally the purchase clause of the Sherman law. The struggle in the house was short. Only 27 men could be rallied for the last stand by the silver leaders, Messrs. Bland and Bryan.

Mr. Bland and his colleagues, knowing that further opposition was futile, preferred to sacrifice the opportunity for a few hours' debate offered by Mr. Wilson in order to force the majority to bring in the cloture and concur in the senate amendment by duress. But even in this they failed.

Their small following might have succeeded had they been led by experienced and skillful parliamentary tacticians. Neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Snodgrass, his lieutenant, is well versed in parliamentary procedure, and when thrown off their guard by a momentary distraction, they exposed their flank by failing to follow one filibustering motion with another.

Speaker Crisp overwhelmed them by putting the pending motion to order the previous question. It was carried with a roar. The filibusterers had been caught napping, and nothing remained for them to do except to submit. For 30 minutes, under the rule, followed the rattle of oratory amid the greatest confusion and excitement. At its conclusion the vote was taken on Mr. Bland's free coinage substitute. The majority was 73 against it.

Then came the final vote on concurring in the senate amendments. The vote stood 193 for concurrence and 94 against. When the original bill passed the house Aug. 28 the vote was 201 to 100, so that although the total vote yesterday was smaller the proportion was practically the same.

The Climax.

The final vote was taken at 2:50 p. m. The bill was engrossed immediately, and in 20 minutes, at 3:10, the formal announcement was made to the senate that its amendment had been agreed to by the house. The bill was hurriedly enrolled by Chairman Pearson of the committee on enrolled bills, and at 3:30 was presented to Speaker Crisp for his signature.

A fleet-footed messenger carried it to the senate, where it was signed two minutes later by Vice President Stevenson. Chairman Pierson, with the bill under his arm, entered a carriage waiting for him on the plaza in front of the Capitol and drove rapidly to the White House.

The president had been kept duly advised of the progress of events. Indeed, he manifested so much interest in the vote in the house that at his request a duplicate of the names of those who had voted for or against the concurrence was made soon after the rollcall was completed, and this list was lying on his desk when Mr. Pearson arrived with the bill. Secretary Carlisle, Attorney General Olney and Private Secretary Thurber were present.

After felicitating with each other for a few moments over the victory that had been achieved, the president took up the engrossed copy of the bill and read it aloud. Then picking up a quill pen he affixed his autograph at 4:25. And thus 85 days 4 hours and 35 minutes after the extraordinary session convened the remedy for the financial distress, which Mr. Cleveland demanded in his message, was applied.

The analysis of the vote shows that 124 Democrats, 68 Republicans and one Populist, Cannon of California, voted for concurrence, and 70 Democrats, 15 Republicans and nine Populists against the motion. The following members voted for the Bland free coinage substitute and also for concurrence:

Alderson, Black of Georgia, Brookshire, Donovan, Edmunds of Virginia, Geary, Holman, Richardson, Mitchell, Marshall, Turpin, Post and Tyler, while Neill, Weaver and Kyle, who voted for the free coinage substitute, did not vote on the final vote.

EPIDEMIC OF GLANDERS

Causing Alarm Among Owners of Horses at Concord, N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 2.—Glanders in a bad form have appeared among horses here. The first case developed in the stables of the state asylum for insane, on Monday last, and the disease quickly spread, infecting several animals that occupied neighboring stalls.

A veterinary was summoned, who, in turn, called State Cattle Commissioner Bachelder. The latter inoculated the horses with malein, the late European discovery, and established the fact that five of the seven sick animals had glanders of a bad type. These he ordered killed, and the stables, which were thoroughly disinfected, will not again be used.

Another case appeared yesterday in a grocer's horse, which has been drinking daily at a public fountain on one of the principal street corners. This horse was also killed, but it is feared that the infection may have been communicated to many valuable horses through the drinking fountain.

A LIFE OF CRIME

He got the wrong one, but did not let him go until he had beaten him nearly to death.

About 11 o'clock at night two of his guards were asleep. The door was broken in with a crash, and guards and prisoners were covered with pistols. Without a word the prisoner was taken out. The body was found hanging from a tree. Redmond's life was full of crime.

For Governor:

JOHN E. RUSSELL.

For Lieut.-Governor:

JAMES B. CARROLL.

For Senator:

PETER J. BRADY.

THE WORLD'S Fair closed like a funeral service, but it was nevertheless an unparalled success.

THE APPLICANTS for relief at the pauper department are numerous and many of them are undeserving. The same may be said of many who apply for employment at the office of the superintendent of streets.

LYNN IS agitating against the distribution of hand bills on the streets. That is right, pass and ordinance against it, as did Lowell. It is a common nuisance to have a fakir stick circulars often of the nastiest character into the hands, pockets and clothing of passers by. No decent city would tolerate such an abuse.

IT WOULD have been well for Mr. Lawton, the senatorial candidate, if he had paid the Citizen for keeping silent. He may be called upon to settle for what it had to say of him although it brought upon his head the wrath of the Boston Herald. His labor record is notable as being uniformly opposed to labor measures.

MR. GREENHALGE'S criticism of Gov. Russell for appointing the sucessor to David Hall Rice, is far fetched. He says the constitution says the governor "may" appoint, not "shall" appoint. The "may" leaves it entirely optional with the governor, and if he has chosen to fill a temporary vacancy in the executive council he has a perfect right to do so.

WILLIAM A. READE of Lowell should receive a majority of 2500 votes in this city. It is for the best interests of this city to elect him in order to displace Commissioner Read and break the county ring which sells out the interests of the county to corporations, to private individuals, to their personal friends and political supporters. Mr. Reade would make an incorruptible official and one who could neither be bribed nor bought.

THE REV. Hugh Montgomery has issued a circular giving his alleged reasons as to why he votes with the republican party in preference to any other. He says he favors the republican party because it has without flinching and without compromise pledged hostility to the liquor traffic. It is but a short time since prohibitionists were assailing the republican party for adopting a hypocritical policy on this question and for claiming to oppose the saloon while at the same time openly supporting it. But Mr. Montgomery is not a prohibitionist now. We know not whether he is a teetotaler, but he says he is with the republican party. So much the worse for the party. Such a disturber will alienate five votes for every one he will bring to the party. He is now a member of the party that keeps the prohibitionists from getting a place on the state ticket.

THE JOINT DEBATE.

Shirtsleeves Walker was vanquished in the joint debate with Hon. George Fred Williams in Worcester on Tuesday night. Walker's groundless assertions were exposed and the responsibility for the financial stringency and the business depression saddled firmly upon the republican party. Mr. Williams read a letter written by Mr. Cleveland in 1885 predicting the financial stringency if the hoarding of silver and the depletion of gold were not checked. The stringency, the business depression came as predicted and the decision of congress to abandon the purchase of silver is the remedy laid down by Cleveland eight years ago. This fell like a thunderbolt on Mr. Walker and he was utterly confounded, while the crowd cheered for Williams.

Now that repeal has been passed confidence will return in due time despite the statements of the calamity howlers. It will be their policy to cast doubt upon this statement and to do all that in them lies to neutralize the effect of repeal until after election day.

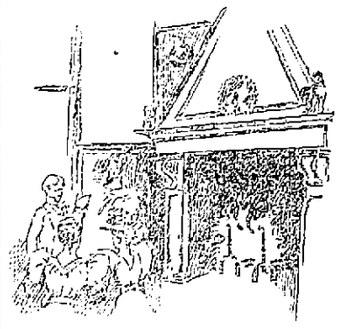

The manufacturers can keep their mills closed or else running on short time as a matter of party accommodation, and the manipulators of the stock market can off set any improvement that may appear within the coming week. With these precautious the republican stump speakers will tell the people that repeal has brought no change, that the real cause of the business depression is distrust as to the new tariff arrangements.

It is obvious that the effect of any such measure cannot be instantaneous, that some time will be required to bring about a change for the better, and it is still as clear that such a change will follow as a direct result of the repeal bill. The drain of gold from the treasury will be stopped, the piling up of silver is at an end, and confidence in the government credit will soon be fully restored.

The democratic administration has been assailed for not fulfilling its pledges. The repeal bill has been passed as the first and most urgent thing promised. It was said some time ago that the democratic party did not mean to fulfil its pledges, but that statement has been falsified in one instance at least. It is now stated by republicans that repeal will not bring a change for the better in industrial circles. That too will soon be proved false.

SUNBEAMS.

His Inheritance.

Cholly—This is my grandmother's portrait, and I am thought to have some of her features.

His Adored—Yes, I see a strong resemblance between her eyebrow and your mustache.—Life.

An Adjustable Dream.

An Irish earl and his lady were riding out one morning, and meeting one of their tenantry gave her a kindly greeting.

"And sure I had a drame about yer honor last night sending me a pound of tobacey and yer leddyship a pound of tay, and it's joyful I am to tell ye this morning," said the accustomed beneficiary.

"But, my good woman," replied the earl, "dreams go by the contrary."

"Indade, then, yer honor is to send the tay and her ladyship the tobacey," was the quick witted reply.—New York Ledger.

Different Kinds of Dust.

Peablossom—Uncle Mose, does you beleebe we is all made ob dust?

Uncle Mose—Suttinly we is.

Peablossom—Den de cultured folks mus' be made of coal dust.

Uncle Mose—De Lor! I nebber thunk ob dat, but I reckon we is.

Peablossom—How erbout de yaller niggers?—Texas Siftings.

A Romantic Bundle.

"Do you love me?" said the paper bag to the sugar.

"I'm just wrapped up in you," replied the sugar.

"You sweet thing!" murmured the paper bag.—Truth.

IT WAS NO USE.

And Realizing It Was Hopeless He Finally Succumbed.

The cable car was going at full speed. It is the manner of this sort of vehicle that it does not gain acceleration gradually after starting, but goes on the jump at the end of the first dozen feet.

At this critical moment a young colored man dashed across the street and swung himself upon the grip car. Just at the same instant a shriek was heard, and a comely woman of African descent and robust physique made a sprint after the traction train. Though the latter was by this time going at about 20 miles an hour, she made a grab at the rail on the last platform and became a passenger by sheer force of muscle and athletic dexterity.

It did not take her half a minute to make her way forward to the grip car and take the seat beside the young colored man, who was much astonished to see her. Said he:

"Whar you gwine?"

"Gwine whar I gwine," she replied loftily and with an air of assumed indifference.

"Whar's dat?"

"Wid you."

"Whuffo?"

"Just 'cause."

"'Cause why?"

"'Cause I feel like ..."

"Well, I don't want you follerin me."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar Thompson, I'm gwine to keep my eyes on you."

"I ain't gwine to have it," protested the colored man. "You git right offen dis car, now I tell you."

"Pooh!" responded the young woman contemptuously.

"You hear what I say!"

"Yeppy."

"Ain't you gwine to mind?"

"Not if dis lady knows herself."

"You gotter."

"I won't."

"Alexander Nebuchadnezzar, you'ze a low down man. If I'd knowed you 'fore I married you as I do now, you'd have had to git some other lady for a wife."

"Stop yer foolishness an git off de car," he replied sullenly.

"I ain't a-gwine to."

"Then you'll git put off."

Just then the conductor came forward to take up the fares in the grip car. The colored man refused to pay for the woman, who addressed an eloquent appeal to the knight of the bell punch.

"This yere is my husband," she said. "I'se got a s'picion dat he's got a meetin on hand wif anudder woman. He got on de car to git rid of me, and I follered to keep an eye on him. I s'pose you're a gemman, and you wouldn't chuck a lady off."

The conductor had a heart, as was evident when he replied:

"Stay on. I'll pay your fare myself."

This happy turn of events caused the young woman to giggle consummately. The man, on the other hand, expressed his disgust with vague and semiarticulate mutterings. All of this had happened while the car was going three blocks.

Just as the cable train was traveling at its most rapid gait between two corners, the recalcitrant husband jumped to his feet without warning and leaped off the car. Evidently he supposed that his wife would not dare to imitate the maneuver, but he reckoned without his host. With a flying bound she sprang off and after him. In 20 seconds she had caught him and grabbed him by the arm.

"Now, you fool nigger," she exclaimed, "just come straight home wid me."

"I'm a-comin," rejoined the man sullenly, evidently recognizing the situation as hopeless from his point of view. And the two walked away arm in arm.—Washington Post.

To All Whom It May Concern.

There are undoubtedly many people who feel at certain time or another unwell, not really sick but very indisposed. Now, what such persons need at such times, is not medicine, nor high-priced prescriptions, but what is needed is some gentle, but sure stimulant, something to assist and at the same time enrich the blood; nature will do the rest. And the best medical authorities agree there is nothing better than pure wine.

"I AM NOW A CURED MAN."

The following wonderful statement was sent us by C. H. Carpenter, Druggist, 140 Main St., Spencer, Mass.

DANA SARSAPARILLA CO.:

GENTS—Some ten years ago I commenced to fail. INDIGESTION and EXTREME CONSTIPATION caused me to lose flesh very fast. I employed Physicians and tried Sarsaparillas, but continued to grow worse. I had a continuous headache, my skin turned yellow, and my friends thought I must die. My strength left me and courage also. This was my condition last February when I commenced to take

DANA'S SARSAPARILLA

Before the first bottle was gone, there was a great improvement. My friends wanted to know what caused such a change in me. I replied "DANA'S SARSAPARILLA." I am now taking my third bottle and consider myself at the age of 25, after Doctors had failed, a CURED MAN.

Yours respectfully, J. R. HERSEY.

MATABLES

At Fort Victoria Suffer An Overwhelming Defeat.

KING LOBENGULA MADE A HASTY RETREAT.

Three Thousand of His Men Killed and Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to The Daily News from Fort Victoria says that the Matabeles have been routed, and that the intense anxiety, which has so long existed, is now relieved. All the advancing columns hold a share in the skirmishing on the march, which was necessarily slow. On Friday the Matabele impis opened a determined attack on the command of Forbes.

LOBENGULA.

The fight was vigorously sustained, but the Matabeles could make no impression on the white forces, who held a position in the Laager. The Matabeles were mowed down on all sides and finally were compelled to retire with heavy loss. Fresh impis resumed the attack next day, Major Forbes and the combined columns being then within a few miles of Buluwayo. The blacks fought with bravery, as was expected of them, but in face of the machine guns and unerring rifles of the whites they could never get within striking distance.

Flight of the Matabeles.

Finally the attack weakened and the Matabeles showed signs that they were about to retreat. Then Major Forbes gave the order to charge. The Maxim guns were placed upon the dense masses of natives, and t whites instantly afterward rushed upon the wavering warriors. The Imbizo regiment attempted to stand their ground, but over half of them were shot down and the remainder fled back to Buluwayo.

It may be said that this practically was the decisive battle of the campaign. King Lobengula commanded the Matabeles in person. He directed the movements of his head men, and he retreated to Buluwayo after the battle. The white forces decided to make a forward movement at once before the blacks could have time to rally. The combined columns opened the attack upon Buluwayo, but there was little fight left in the Matabeles, and they fled in a northwesterly direction, King Lobengula with them. A flying column was at once made up to pursue and harass them, although it is believed that the Matabeles have been thoroughly beaten and cowed and that Lobengula's power is gone.

The loss to the Chartered company's forces was only slight, and was mainly confined to the column commanded by Major Forbes. The Matabele loss is reported to exceed 30,000 killed and wounded. The imperial forces under Colonel Adams reached Buluwayo yesterday from the occupation by the settlers, hoping the Matabeles could be driven beyond Zambesi before the rainy season sets in, so as to avoid further fighting in the spring.

A dispatch to The Times from Fort Charter says that it is reported that Lobengula has gone to the Mateppo hills with the remainder of his impis. If this be true, he will be completely trapped. It is more likely, however, that he has retreated toward the Zambesi. It is possible that the remainder of the impi may kill Lobengula. Administrator Jameson will remain at Buluwayo as administrator.

Germans Are Worried.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The Cologne Gazette has received a dispatch from Cape Town giving alarming reports of the condition of affairs in German Southwest Africa. It is stated that Chief Witbooi and his followers have had a quarrel with the colonial troops near Horkanis, and that several Germans, including Lieutenant Francois, have been killed and the German settlements burned. The reports have not been confirmed.

A Fight In the Soudan.

TRIPOLI, Nov. 2.—There has been heavy fighting in the Soudan. Rabak, the ex-slave of Zobeir Pasha, recently revolted against the Sultan of Wedday, but was defeated. He rallied his forces and made fierce war upon the people of Bornou, and captured several towns about Lake Chad. Rabak has burned and pillaged Boghirmi, the capital, and other towns. The inhabitants have fled to Bornou, to which territory the sultan has dispatched 40,000 soldiers to co-operate with the 25,000 sent by the Sultan of Wedday to attack Lagun, which place Rabak has occupied. The warfare now in progress has caused all the caravan routes to be closed.

Asphyxiated.

ARMS FOR BRAZIL.

Belief That Another Very Large Shipment Has Been Made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Antonio de Castilho, consul general in New York for President Peixoto's government, sailed on the steamer Wordsworth yesterday afternoon for Pernambuco. Although De Castilho is in poor health, it is considered significant that he should leave his post these critical times in his country. Men acquainted with Brazilian affairs gave it as their opinion that De Castilho is going to Brazil with regard to the purchase of ships for a navy.

His familiarity with maritime affairs will enable him to tell President Peixoto the exact strength of the vessels which Flint & Co. have purchased and expect to purchase. It is said that a large shipment of arms for the Brazilian army was made yesterday. The story was that the arms were loaded on a sailing vessel, which was to be overtaken by a steamer, and the arms transferred at sea.

The brig Reindeer cleared for San Jose Do Norte, a Brazilian port, ostensibly loaded with 250 tons of coal, and the indications pointed to her as the craft that carried the arms.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—The Brazilian government has purchased through Charles E. Flint & Co. the magnificent steamer Britannia of the North Atlantic Steamship company's fleet. The price paid for her was $225,000.

SYNDICATE OF FORGERS

Will Have to Explain Their Misdeeds to Officers of the Law.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Joseph O. Hayes, 18 years old, a messenger employed by Coffin & Stanton, brokers; Henry D. Garrett, alias Loper, 31 years old; James D. Buchanan, 47 years old; "Manufacturer" John T. Brush, 53 years old, and Sedlow W. Crow, better known as Dr. C. W. Selden, 57 years old, were indicted by the grand jury and remanded by Judge Martine to the Tombs.

They are charged with the planning and successful carrying out of a forging scheme on a large scale. Two checks were forged, drawn on the Manhattan company and certified to by that bank, purporting to be signed by Coffin & Stanton. One of the checks was for $350 and the other for $5026.6b. The checks were deposited in the Garfield National bank on Sept. 28 and Oct. 22, respectively, and had been drawn against until only $7.50 remained. Inspector McLaughlin got wind of the swindle 10 days ago.

PENNOYER'S PLEA.

A Whack at the Silver Question In His Thanksgiving Proclamation.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 2.—Governor Pennoyer yesterday issued the following thanksgiving proclamation:

I do hereby appoint the fourth Thursday of the present month as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings he has bestowed upon this commonwealth during the present year. God has indeed been most beneficient to our state and nation. And yet, unjust and ill-advised congressional legislation, having made gold alone a full legal tender money, has so dwarfed and paralyzed business that the bounties of Providence are now denied to hundreds of thousands of people within the national domain, who not only are without employment, but also without the means of procuring food, raiment or shelter.

While, therefore, the people of Oregon return thanks to God for his goodness, I do most earnestly recommend that they devoutly implore him to dispose the president and congress of the United States to secure restoration of silver as full legal tender money, in accordance with the policy of the fathers of the republic, whereby our industries may be revived and honest toilers of the land may procure their daily bread, not as alms, but as a reward of their labor.

DOZEN DROWNED.

Electric Street Car Plunges Into a River at Portland, Or.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 2.—An electric car plunged through the open draw of the Madison street bridge yesterday, and sank in the Willamette river. There were 18 or 20 passengers aboard, and all but seven saved their lives by leaping from the car. Five bodies have been recovered.

When the car arrived at the bridge a dense fog enveloped the river and a sharp frost covered the rails with a coating of ice. The draw had just been opened to allow the passage of a steamer, and the usual precautions of closing the gates and displaying the red signal lights had been taken. Owing to the frost, however, the car could not be stopped in the usual distance and crashed through the frail gate and into the river.

The motorman, when he saw he could not stop the car, gave the alarm to the passengers, and as many as had time saved themselves by jumping. The car plunged into the river just in front of the bow of the steamer.

JAMES WHITE'S DEATH.

Circumstances Indicate That Murder Has Been Committed.

WINSTED, Conn., Nov. 2.—Coroner Higgins made discoveries which caused him to order an autopsy on the body of James L. White, who was found dead in his watch box in the yards of the Philadelphia, Reading and New England railroad at Chapinsville Tuesday.

Patrick Finnigan, a section boss, noticed smoke issuing from White's watch box. He investigated and found White dead. The floor was covered with blood, and on the floor were several large stones besmeared with blood.

The dead man's face was frightfully bruised, as was his body. The house was afire, and the flames had also somewhat burned the body. Medical Examiner Birtch of Salisbury was summoned, and, after examining the body, refused to allow it to be buried.

Everything points to murder, but there is no clew upon which to work.

White was 35 years of age and leaves a family in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Fireman Overcome by Smoke.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Fire broke out at midnight in a five-story brick tenement at Third street and the Bowery. Twelve families resided there, and they were all immediately ordered out. Six firemen were overcome by the smoke. Two of them were resuscitated, and the other four taken to Bellevue hospital.

Murderous Robbers.

WEEPING WATER, Neb., Nov. 2.—Mathew Ackerman, living near here, was murdered yesterday by two men, who came, it is said, for the purpose of robbery. They shot Mr. Ackerman first and then his son Tom in the head, making a slight wound; then the hired man was shot in the leg and Mrs. Ackerman over the heart.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 2.—The free use of the pardoning power by Governor Reynolds is causing much comment. He has thus far extended clemency to 24 convicts, at which rate he will have pardoned 93 at the expiration of his term. His predecessors have averaged about six pardons each.

OUR THEATRES.

OPERA HOUSE—The banner night of the season was that of last evening on the occasion of the Salvini engagement. Standing room was even at a premium. Of Salvini and his company in Dumas' wonderful historical romance only words of highest praise can be given. From beginning to end it was an artistic creation complete in every detail and interpreted by clever people. Salvini as Philippi D'Artagnan was instantly the favorite and his assumption of the young Gascon was a character, such as Dumas' has given the world. Lively and energetic as he was in the use of his faithful "Bobby" he showed his inherited histionic talents whenever the part required it. His reception throughout was most hearty and vigorous. It was likewise a treat again to see William Redmond as Athos, and William Harris as Porthos, both of whom were ideal characters in their parts, and upon them the audience bestowed much attention. Miss Moretti as Anne of Austria, superbly presented the part. Miss Dixon was a charming Constance in both appearance and acting. The character which perhaps received an especial share of attention was that of the great cardinal, Richelieu, and Mr. Johnson, in the part, interpreted the lines with remarkable success. It is not an easy part to play by any means.

Of the remainder of the cast Mr. Lane was not the Buckingham which a reader of history would expect to see on the stage; Miss De Forrest as Lady De Winter was clever as Richelieu's spy, and excellent in her emotional acting. The remainder of the cast was undeniably good although the parts being insignificant in comparison, the people taking them did not shine as resplendent as the stars.

Taking the play as a whole it was a delightful and refreshing evening of legitimate drama, and one that proved that the stage is not entirely pre-empted by comedy and burlesque. The costuming and staging was of the best, and the audience proved the warmest in enthusiasm of the season.

On Saturday evening Charles E. Davies will present Uncle Tom's Cabin, with Peter Jackson as Uncle Tom. Between the acts Jackson and the young Californian Choynski will spar.

While it is undeniably strange that such an original, brilliant and witty a creation as Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" should have scarcely half a score of revivals during the whole history of the English speaking stage, it is doubtless due to the fact that not on an average of once in a generation is an actor produced whose natural gifts and accomplishments fit him to adequately portray the subtle, but quaint and rolicking whimsicalities of either of the two Dromios. Next Monday evening, Stuart Robson will be seen as one of the Dromios.

The Appleton company has been awarded two medals and a diploma at the World's Fair—one medal and a diploma for novelties in cotton goods and one medal for excellence of manufacture. This is an honor which the directors may well feel proud of and for which especial credit is due to the modest efficient superintendent, Mr. C. H. Richardson, under whose administration the company has been placed upon a dividend paying basis.

The members of the Lowell branch of the Women's Alliance entertained about 100 members of other branches from Ayer, Groton, Littleton, Waltham, Arlington, Cambridge, Lexington and East Lexington, in the parlors of the Unitarian church Tuesday. There were addresses by Mrs. Annie B. Richardson, Rev. Mr. Batchelor and Rev. Mr. Littlefield of Ayer, and Mrs. E. P. Judkins read a report of the last meeting. Miss Helen A. Whittier reviewed the success of the "cheerful letter" work. The exercises began at 11 A. M. and lasted till 3.30 P. M., and at noon a palatable dinner was served.

CHILD LABOR.

A BIG DECREASE IN IT REPORTED BY CHIEF WADE.

Violations Have Been Few and Manufacturers Have Generally Obeyed the Law—Reports of District Officers.

The state factory inspectors have reported to Rufus B. Wade, chief of the district police, that there has been a marked decrease in the number of violations of the child labor law the past year.

While last year there were over 3000 violations reported there has been but 253 children under 14 years of age found at work in factories this year.

In his report made to the legislature last year, Chief Wade stated that in 4389 manufacturing and mercantile establishments in the state, 1650 children between the ages of 13 and 14 years of age were employed.

This statement showed plainly that the child labor law, which provides that all children under 14 years of age shall attend school 20 weeks during the year, had been violated. That something should be done to prevent this violation was the conclusion reached by Chief Wade, and he immediately set to work.

From reports recently submitted to him, the chief reports that there have been 3457 inspections made during the year, and only 253 children under the age limit have been found employed.

For some weeks Mrs. Fanny B. Ames, one of the inspectors, has been investigating, and her reports have been quite satisfactory.

In 1880, when the child labor act was in its youth and not as stringent as at the present time, children under 13 years of age were employed by thousands in all the manufacturing centers, and owing to the condition of affairs which existed then the necessity of making the law what it is today was shown.

Since that time the superintendents of large manufacturing concerns have voluntarily refused to employ children under the age limit, and it is partially owing to this fact that the great decrease is due.

Truant officers, formerly very derelict in their duty, are today materially assisting in the work of reform. Their aid in this work is invaluable, as they possess information which it would be extremely difficult for other officials to secure.

Contrary to the general impression, children at work under the age of limit are not in the main employed in large industrial establishments, but in small shops and stores. In Boston very few children under 14 years are employed, though several years ago hundreds of children under that age were to be found at work in stores.

Mrs. Ames says that in all her experience she has never noted so few children employed, and it is her opinion that in time the law will be but seldom violated. The parents, she says, have awakened to the advantages of education, and they endeavor more strongly than in previous years to keep their children in school.

There were 11,855 minors found employed in the different factories, but only 253 were under the age limit.

RABBIT HUNTING.

How it Should be Done to Avoid Law Breaking.

On the street the past few days have been seen many men burdened with shot guns and accompanied by dogs. Out in Dracut the reports of firearms are frequently heard indicating that there is considerable hunting, even though the Rod and Gun club is not holding its annual shoot.

Of the New England game there is none that is so persistently and systematically pursued illegally as the rabbit. By its peculiar nature it invites the breaking of a state law that was made to protect it. The use of a ferret is prohibited under the statutes, but there is hardly a rabbit hunter who goes into the woods without a "monkey" or "joker," as the ferret is called. And notwithstanding the degree of persistency with which the rabbit is followed by the hunter, pursued by the nimble beagle and routed from its hole by the ferret, it thrives and multiplies beyond comprehension.

The wild rabbit, like the domesticated animal breeds frequently, and the litters are generally very numerous, some being as large as 15, but an ordinary litter contains about seven. The young rabbits breed at an early stage, and the supply is thereby kept above demand. The rabbits breed in the thick brier patches on top of the ground, under the sheltering shade of the scrub oaks, and in their domiciles in the ground.

The youngsters take to living easily, and in a few days will scamper about in a most lively manner. A dry season, such as has been experienced this year, is conducive to a goodly supply, and this accounts for the great number this year, old hunters claiming that never before have they seen them so plentiful in this vicinity.

The rabbits run in the night, and the woods where they make their stamping ground is traversed with paths leading in all directions. Hopping along from clump to clump picking up the nuts and berries of the woods and nibbling at the fresh vegetable growths, they may be seen on any moonlight night. Into the neighboring gardens they will wander, cropping the dainty tidbits from the garden sauce and selecting the most valuable plants to feed upon.

After feeding they will scamper away for a frolic, and then they will be seen circling about in a merry go round chasing each other and reveling in high glee. By the break of day they have worn themselves out and retire to the cover for rest and sleep, only to be driven out by the dogs, which have sprung them from their resting place by running upon them or had taken the fresh trail and unravelled it until they had reached the end and their reward.

The rabbit is of little value as a food product until after the frosts have covered the land for a few nights. Then the flesh becomes a subject for the epicure. Hunted by day, the rabbit offers fine sport, while those who desire the game for the table and market hunt it by night. The rabbits at this season of the year are found near the wet lands, having their burrows on the hill sides surrounding the sloughs and swamps. Leading to the holes are the many intricate paths, and every hole has an outlet, so that the rabbit may make its entrance by one hole and its exit by the other.

In places where there are boulders shattered so that a hole may be dug beneath them, they will burrow in order to insure them against the attack of the spade and bar when run to earth.

The best time of day to follow them is at early morn. Then they have ceased their night's frolic and the trail that they have left is fresh. With a still morning it is an easy matter for the hounds to unravel the trail and rout the rabbit out, but if there is a wind blowing the task becomes difficult.

COMPLAIN OF CUT-DOWN.

Weavers on the Appleton Report a Decrease in Their Wages.

Justice Assembly, K. of L., met last evening and discussed several important matters.

Several new members were initiated and the recent reduction of 25 per cent. in the wages of the fancy weavers on the Crompton looms was taken up.

A delegation of the weavers was present and claimed that none but skilled weavers can run this work and in their opinion the cut down is injust.

It was stated that before the cut-down the weavers on the Appleton were receiving $1.50 per week less than is paid for the same work in North Adams and Fitchburg; and now when this reduction is made, the wages will be about two thirds of those paid in the above mentioned places. The delegates claim that they were somewhat surprised on reading in an account of a recent meeting of the Church league that Rev. Mr. Wright had stated that the Appleton company had decided to run its mills at a loss, in order to furnish employment to its operatives. It does not look as though they intended to lose much, when they have already begun to reduce wages.

It was voted to bring the matter of the reduction before the notice of the national organization.

A communication was received from the secretary of the National organization, K. of L., asking that a boycott be placed upon all matter published by George Munro of New York city.

After some discussion it was voted to declare a boycott and to bring the matter to the attention of the Central Labor Union at its next meeting.

Miss Delia Conners resigned her position as financial secretary owing to removal from the city and Miss Mary Kilkerney was chosen to fill the vacancy. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring secretary.

The Coming Events.

Among the events for the future for which tickets have been issued are the annual balls of the Firemen's Relief association and the Police Relief association, the latter to occur January 2d, 1894.

NATURALIZATION.

JUDGE HADLEY OPPOSED TO HOLDING NIGHT SESSIONS.

He Gives Advice to the Managers of Political Parties—They Are Not to Wait Till Election Day Nor to Bring in Ineligible Parties.

The following opinion from Judge Hadley upon the manner and means of naturalizing foreign born residents in the police court, is given by the Mail and being of special importance because of the judge expressing his intention to demand more careful preparation of candidates, is well worth perusal:

"I should like to have it publicly announced," said he, "that we have held the last evening session for naturalization in the Lowell police court. With the duty which now devolves upon the officers of the court it is too much to ask us, after the arduous duty of the day is over, to come to the court room and sit for two hours or more in an atmosphere vitiated by a crowd that is none too tidy at the best, and decide hurriedly upon papers that should receive deliberate consideration. It requires the closest attention to see that everything is properly prepared, but if we should take the time necessary to do strict justice in every case there would be at the delay. I propose hereafter to hold special sessions for naturalization on Saturday afternoons, but of course we shall be prepared to attend to all such cases during the regular sessions of the court.

"I am aware that this plan may not be favorably received by the engineers of either political party, about election time when they go through the city with a drag net and gather in a drove of candidates to be put through before election day comes. But I wish to have it distinctly understood that the court does not sit for this purpose, simply to gain voters; our purpose is to make citizens. That is what they are naturalized for, and not simply to issue the final papers on time to allow the newly-pledged citizens to go before the board of registrars on the last day of their session.

"If this were the only time that the candidates could legally present themselves there would be some excuse for it. There may be some instances where such is the case, but they are very few.

"What I mean is this: The law requires that every person who desires to become a citizen shall first file an application, stating when he arrived in the country, which shall be sworn to by two witnesses. The law also requires that he shall have been in the country five years before he takes out his final papers, but he cannot take them out until two years from the time he makes the application. If a person makes an application upon first arriving in this country he must wait five years before the final papers are taken out, but if he resides here three years and then makes the application he can take out the final papers when the two years have expired. He is not required to do so, by law, immediately upon the expiration of the two years he may do it any time afterwards. That time may have expired six months ago, but the candidate takes no interest in the matter in most cases, until just before election, when they are "brad-awled" by the party leaders and come in droves at a night session.

"As I have said before our object in naturalization is to make citizens and not voters particularly.

We Don't Run the Police Court

in the interest of any party and we don't propose to have any politics in our administration of affairs if we know it. If foreigners desire to become citizens they should be interested enough to call for their final papers earlier in the season and not wait to be whipped in by those who take no interest in them except to qualify them as voters in time for election. It is not in keeping with the dignity of any court of justice to be a party to any such political engineering and I propose to stop it.

"I don't wish to be understood as being peculiar in this respect. We have discussed this subject at meetings of the municipal justices and we are all agreed the duty imposed upon us is abused

Another radical change that I propose to make and insist upon, is that all applications for papers shall be made to the clerk of the court and that he shall make them out. The present plan is to have the papers made out at the headquarters of the different political parties. Mistakes are frequently found upon them which require considerable time to rectify, which would not be necessary if proper care were observed in drawing them up. It oftentimes happens that we have to send out for the person that made out the papers to explain matters which, of course, takes time. Again, when papers are drawn up by parties politically interested it is sometimes evident that the candidate has been coached as to the answers he is to make, and he forgets his instructions and gets cornered. There was a case last week when a candidate appeared for his final papers and the first question I asked him was how long he had been in the state. He answered that he came from Connecticut last June. I dismissed him at once as the law requires that he must be in the state a year. He demurred and wanted to know where he should go to be naturalized. I told him that I didn't see as he could be naturalized any where under the circumstances, unless he could find a court that had jurisdiction, but that I did not have any. Now, whoever was instrumental in sending that man into the court must have known that he was not eligible, and it is barely possible that that he had forgottten to answer the questions he had received.

"Again I believe there are many persons naturalized who would be disqualified if their characters were known. If a man has he is not eligible, and the city clerk is required to post a list of applicants in order that their antecedents may be looked up but how many cases were ever investigated.

"The fact is that the whole matter has been too loosely conducted and it will continue to be so as as long as the business is engineered by political parties. In the eagerness to make voters there is too much of an inducement to use fraud and deception. If a person has no conscience in the matter and has no regard for his oath there is no reason he cannot become a voter before he has been in this country a week. I don't propose to allow any case of illegal naturalization to pass this court if I know it, and if any safeguards can be legally applied I propose to apply them if possible."

A Point on Winter Cloaks.

When a woman goes to a store for Hair Pins she does not care to see a great assortment for hair pins are but hair pins. But when she wants a cloak it is different. She wants the largest possible assortment to choose from. There is some one in a large lot that suits her better than all the rest and that one garment is the one she wants. It follows that a woman can make the best choice where the largest variety and latest designs are shown and that is at the Beaver Cloak Co.'s new store in the P. O. block. Ladies, misses', and children's garments of all kinds and prices way down.
